Baby Swap Mothers Plead for Nurses

Debs Rush Swedish Prince

Newport debs and dowagers vied for the flashing boyish smile of handsome young Prince Bertil of Sweden today, as Boston prepared an elaborate New England welcome for his royal parents, Crown Prince Gustave Adolf and Crown Princess Louise.

At swanky Bailey's Beach, Newport, something wholly new in the experience of Sweden's bachelor prince was arranged as a feature of his program.

It was a regular American shore picnic, complete with hot dogs, steamed clams and appropriate "fixin's."

On hand today at Newport's beach were all society colony members.

Those debs who failed to win a share of the prince's attention at last night's dinner dance were determined to gain his attention in informal seaside surroundings this afternoon.

Prince Bertil preceded his parents to New England, arriving at Newport by yacht. In his party

Hanging In Cell Laid To Battle

The terrific battle put up by Chester I. Dunlap, 27, of North Acton, prior to his suicide in the Concord State Police barracks, today was blamed by officers for their failure to remove the belt, with which he took his own life.

Remorse over the death of an aged woman and serious injury to four other persons in a Concord turnpike crash, for which he blamed himself, was said by authorities to have caused Dunlap to hang himself in his cell.

The prisoner, minus one hand as the result of a previous crash, had been booked at the barracks

JEWISH LEADER DIES

LONDON, July 9 (AP) — Dr. Claude Joseph Goldsmid-Montefiore, 80, an authority on Judaism and Jewish literature, died today. He was a former president of the Anglo-Jewish Association.

THE WEATHER

Local thunder showers today; cooler tonight and generally fair tomorrow.

From the lips of two mothers today came pleas that a student nurse and graduate nurse at City Hospital be spared the punishment meted out to them for the unprecedented baby "mix-up" of Thursday.

The student nurse was ordered dismissed and the graduate nurse suspended for three months by the hospital board of trustees for the blunder that caused Mrs. Kathleen Lisenby of Brighton, mother of a new son, to carry home the baby daughter of Mrs. Mary O'Brien of Charlestown.

SAYS ACTION "SHAME"

"It's a crying shame for those trustees to do that," Mrs. Lisenby declared today.

"I'll bet a dollar they all have made many a mistake—more serious ones that those poor girls did. I've travelled a lot and seen a lot of nurses and I honestly can say I never have seen two more obliging and efficient girls.

"I repeat, it's a crying shame. I'm going to write to the trustees this very minute. There wasn't any chance of a permanent mistake being made. It was just a case of the two babies being dressed at the same time and the wrong clothes being put on them.

"Perhaps the trustees think they ought to make a show for the public but after all I am one of the two persons affected. I hope they will take some notice of how I feel about it."

TERMS NURSES GRAND

At the same time, Mrs. O'Brien, who still is in the hospital, voiced her disapproval of the trustees.

"Those nurses were grand to me," she stated. "True, a mistake was made, but it's the first of its kind in the history of the hospital. Since everything has come out all right, I can't see why anyone should be punished. It's a pretty small thing to make such a fuss about and I'm doing all I can to get the trustees to change their hurried decision."

Dad Blasts 'Honor' to Son

SEATTLE, Wash., July 9 (INS) —A meeting held today to honor the memory of Thane Summers, University of Washington honor student killed fighting for the government army in Spain, was denounced as "more Moscow," by his father, Attorney Lane Summers.

He blamed "some insidious instructors in high schol and university," for luring his son into the army and charged the intent of the meeting was "to recruit more misguided martyrs."

Irish Guards on Duty

Arab-Jew Toll Is 61

British Troops Rule in Palestine

JERUSALEM, July 9 (AP)—Famed Irish guards, who provide some of the sentries for King George's London palace, tramped into apprehensive Jerusalem today to help thousands of other soldiers and police quell bloody Arab-Jewish violence.

The slaying of two Christians and one Moslem in an Arab village in the holy Nazareth district brought the number of deaths in three days of racial killings to 61. At least 150 were wounded. Arab strikes spread through the Holy Land.

Most Arab shops in Jerusalem remained closed. Few persons dared venture into streets. Strict curfew laws were enforced in the largest cities. Tourists, among them 35 Americans, could travel only with heavy police escorts.

Two steel-helmeted policemen—one British and one native—sat with loaded rifles atop every bus operating in Jerusalem. Buses throughout Palestine repeatedly have been targets for bombs, rifles and machine guns. Four Arabs were killed and 36 injured when a bomb shattered a bus here yesterday.

GIRL ARRESTED

Burly Scotchmen of the crack Black Watch regiment picketed the main square of the Jewish quarter and the Arab market area, scene of yesterday's bombing.

Arabs charged that a 12-year-old Jewish schoolgirl, arrested following the bombing, had carried a handbag from which a companion drew the missile and flung it into the crowd.

The girl insisted she was innocent, declaring she was simply walking near the scene with her father when the explosion occurred and that she knew nothing about the bomb. Authorities indicated they were inclined to believe the girl's version, although they held her for detailed questioning.

Jewish spokesmen said, however, that most of the attacks on Arabs were by paid agents provocateur.

SNIPING REPORTED

Nine cases of sniping were reported in scattered districts—including three against Jewish settlements near Jerusalem, Haifa and Jaffa, and at an Arab village on the outskirts of Jerusalem.

Civil strife between Arab and Jewish communities continued.

Many instances of stoning were reported. Railroads, telephone lines and government property were sabotaged at many points.

Police patrols in country districts used police dogs to track persons who ambushed two British police officers. The officers said they killed one of their attackers and described him as an Arab.

3 Nations Open Doors To Refugees

EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France, July 9 (AP)—Three Latin-American nations offered today to open their doors to German and Austrian refugees after other countries had told the Evian conference they could not permit mass immigration.

Mexico pledged "asylum to foreigners who are afraid for their lives" and promised opportunities for them to work.

The Dominican Republic followed suit as did Peru, the latter making an exception, however, of refugee intellectuals.

Virgilio Trujillo Molina, Dominican delegate, announced both agricultural and professional men would be accepted. He said large areas suitable for farming were available and the West Indian Republic would provide seed and technical advice.

Gracia Calderon, Peruvian delegate, said Peru would welcome farmers and all agricultural workers, but would "place strict restriction on lawyers, doctors and other professional emigrants."

MEXICO OFFERS AID

The Mexican delegate, Primo Villa Michel, told the conference "our collaboration will make it possible to carry out the migration of refugees from Germany and Austria in an orderly manner at a rate appropriate to each country's requirements and possibilities."

Jesus Maria Yepes, delegate from Colombia, said his country must limit immigration to agricultural workers.

Argentina and Brazil previously had made similar discouraging statements.

ROOSEVELT MESSAGE

Garcia Oldini, Chilean delegate, announced his country would be unable to increase its immigration quotas for either industrial or agricultural workers pending completion of technical studies already ordered.

Myron C. Taylor, chief United States delegate and president of the conference, announced that Senator Henry Berenger, head of the French delegation and honorary president, had received a telegram from President Roosevelt.

"I hope for all success to the committee in its work which is of such importance for a large part of humanity now plunged in despair," the message said.

Nazis Make Divorce Easy in Germany

BERLIN, July 9 (INS)—A decree drastically revising the marriage and divorce laws of Nazi Germany and introducing civil marriage throughout Austria, was promulgated here today.

Divorces are made easier to obtain, especially for childless couples, under the new laws effective August 1.

Men are forbidden to marry until they are 21 years old and girls until they are 16. Exceptions, however, are provided for in the case of men who are in the army, the state public service or the Nazi labor service. These men are permitted to marry between the ages of 18 and 21.

Ten thousand couples now living apart in Austria, are expected to rush to the divorce courts on or shortly after August 1, when they will be able to obtain divorces.

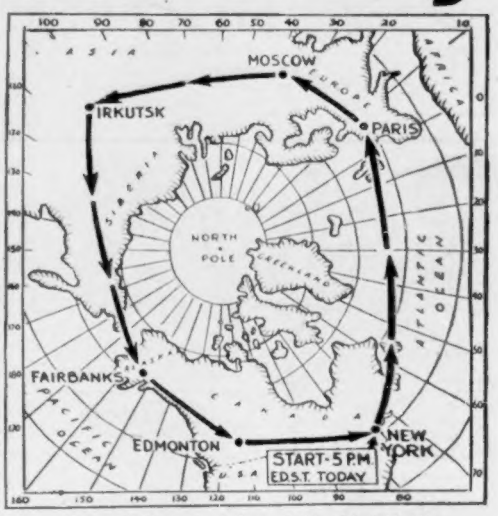
Hughes Set to Fly



Map of Proposed Round World Flight

NEW YORK, July 9 (INS)—Extensive repairs on Howard Hughes' trans-atlantic plane, "New York World's Fair, 1939," seemed likely today to postpone his start to 5 p. m. tomorrow.

At the World's Fair it was announced, however, that the plane would be ready to hop off for Paris at 5 p. m. today. A test flight was scheduled for lae today.

Hughes left this morning for Floyd Bennett Field, scheduled take-off point, to make the final decision. Permission to make the flight has already been granted by fovrenment officials to the movie producer-aviator.

Roaring into the skies as the good-will ambassador of the New York World's Fair, Hughes expects to reach Paris in 24 hours, 11½ hours faster than Lindbergh's time.

"Whether the flight is to be extended into a dash around the world will be decided after Hughes reaches Paris," said Albert L. Ledwick, Hughes' manager.

That an around-the-world flight has been tentatively planned was recently admitted at the administration office of the World's Fair.

BID TO ALL FLIERS

The purpose is to invite to the fair the greatest fliers of all the nations of the world—with the exception of Germany, which announced a few weeks ago it would not participate.

The route tentatively agreed upon, it was said, closely parallels that of the late Wiley Post.

Moscow was to be one of the stops, according to this schedule. The only other landing places mentioned were on the return route. These are Fairbanks, Alaska, and Edmonton, Can.

HAS CREW OF FOUR

There were repeated reports that Katharine Hepburn, the motion picture actress, might accompany Hughes on the flight, but they never received serious consideration.

Hughes will carry a crew of four, consisting of Harry P. Connor and Lieut. Thomas Thurlow, navigators; Edward Lund, flight engineer, and Richard Stoddart, radio operator. These were his companions on the transcontinental flight to Floyd Bennett field from Burbank, Cal.

One of the features of the huge, twin-motored craft, which has a flying radius of 4700 miles, is an elaborate radio equipment which is expected to keep Hughes in wireless contact with the World's Fair offices in New York throughout the flight.

Injured Boxing

A friendly boxing match with his brother sent Wilbert Credle, 18, of Savin street, Roxbury, to the City Hospital today with a torn scalp.

Taken off balance, a light jab from Wilbert's brother, Willie, 16, sent him against a kitchen window pane.

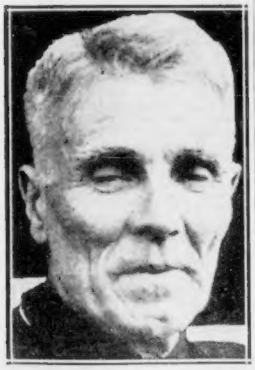
Wine Bridal

Europe Lures May

ATHOL, July 9—A champagne wedding reception and a European honeymoon today were added to the wedding plans of 16-year-old Anna May, Athol's child bride-to-be.

Groom, 63



PLANS COMPLETE—Still defying small town gossipers 63-year-old Herbert Boutall put the finishing touches on his plans for his wedding Monday to 16-year-old Anna May. He's sure they'll find companionship and love.

A trifle annoyed by mounting publicity, 63-year-old Herbert David Boutall, retired machinist and now a prospective husband, admitted that a trip to Europe was a decided possibility.

"But a man's honeymoon is his own business," Boutall declared. "I hope that after the wedding is over, everyone will leave us alone for a while. There seems to be too much fuss over the whole affair.

WINE AND MILK

"I have arranged for champagne for a little celebration at my house after the church ceremony.

"There'll be champagne for those who like it and milk for the others. It won't be a big reception—just a few of our best friends. The rest of the town can go hang."

Wedding plans were completed today with the shifting of the marriage hour in St. John's Episcopal Church from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., when the Rev Percival Wood will perform the rites.

FOR HER BROTHER

The change was made to accommodate Anna's brother, Dexter May, who is to be best man. Dexter has early morning milking to do, and needed more time to complete his farm chores and don his wedding attire.

Otherwise, there was little change today in the most publicized marriage in Athol's history.

Boutall insists that the gossip of townspeople will make no difference to them. He reiterated that they are sure to find companionship and love, and revealed he is anxious to show off his pretty young bride to his relatives in his native England.

Anna,—well, she has the same philosophy. If her David says so, it must be so.

Bride, 16

WAITS BIG DAY — Places that are just history book names now will come to life for little Anna May, 16, after her wedding Monday to the 63-year-old man of her heart. Their honeymoon itinerary was made known today.

Women Brave Grand Canyon

LEE'S FERRY, Ariz., July 9 (AP)—Inoculated against fear by 18 dramatic days of plunging down one of the West's mightiest rivers, two women awaited eagerly today the second half of the Colorado River descent to Boulder Dam, Nev.

Informed that the six-member scientific expedition still has the turbulent rapids of the Grand Canyon to navigate, 40-year-old Elzada Clover said:

"Rapids frightened me when the trip started, but now I know how to help handle the boat."

Her 25-year-old assistant, Lois Jotter, said:

"I'm not worried. The trip's been exciting and swell. It looks as though Dr. Clover and I will be the first women to conquer the Colorado."

FIX MINE BLAST CAUSE

WASHINGTON, July 9 (INS)—An overcharged shot of black blasting powder was blamed by the Bureau of Mines today for the gas explosion which killed 10 men in the colliery of the Volpe Coal Company at Pittston, Pa., June 2.

Reims' Bells

Ring Again After 24 Years

REIMS, France, July 9 (AP)—The bells of ancient Reims Cathedral, silent since the great edifice was largely demolished by German guns during the World War, pealed today for the first time in 24 years.

Audible for miles around the countryside, the bells announced ceremonies which will culminate tomorrow in inauguration of the rebuilt cathedral in the presence of President Albert Lebrun and other dignitaries.

The great bells are hundreds of years old, one of them dating back to 1570.

About 100,000 visitors are expected in Reims tomorrow for the event, made possible through huge donations from John D. Rockefeller.

The cathedral was struck by 287 German shells during the war which in 1919 left intact only 17 buildings in the city of 100,000 population.

In 'Babaland' Every Man Will Be a Rajah!

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9 (AP)—If the deal goes through for the pretty Princess Baba of Sarawak and her English wrestler husband, they said here today, there'll be a "Babaland" in the Dutch East Indies where "every man would be a rajah."

The princess, by marriage Mrs. Bob Gregory, said she and her muscle-man husband were negotiating for purchase of an island in the Indies group for their future domain.

She mentioned $30,000 as a suggested price and said:

"We're going to have a democracy, but with a court and things. Maybe an aristocratic democracy. I think a country without lots of uniforms and braid is no fun."

The said her family situation—her marriage to the wrestler was frowned upon by her Rajah father, the white ruler of Sarawak—was unchanged so far as she knew.

Gregory and his princess, who have taken an apartment at nearby Palo Alto pending arrival of an expected baby, said they discussed their plan with the Dutch consul here yesterday. Neither they nor the consul disclosed what he thought about the proposal.

Clinton Woman Exhibits Dolls

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—The most varied collection of dolls ever shown in the United States was assembled today for the first national doll show.

There were coronation dolls of the English court—Anna Held in a plume-laden picture hat; a 1915 war widow, dolls from Labrador, Italy, Lapland, Russia, Hawaii and one pair from North Caroline with heads made of hickory nuts.

Mrs. Mary E. Lewis, president of the National Doll and Toy Collectors' Club, has 400, from 36 countries. Other leading exhibitors include Mrs. Louis F. Wood of Clinton, Mass., Miss Elizabeth Hooper of Baltimore, Md., Mrs. Samuel Yellin of Wynnewood, Pa., and Mrs. Marion Weeks Casey, of Jersey City.

Riches 'Haunt' Babs

Heiress Very Proud Of Her 'Dishpan' Kin

Adela Rogers St. Johns, noted screen and fiction writer, has written the "behind the headlines" story of Barbara Hutton, Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow. To Miss St. Johns the young heiress confided her hopes and plans. In today's instalment the beautiful and unhappy countess says that if she had less wealth, she might have more peace and contentment, might not now be waging a bitter fight with her nobleman husband over custody of their child.

CHAPTER TWO

Somewhere today in London is a girl named Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow.

Around her head gather startling rumors. Within a few days she will stand in open court and her own husband has stated that he will produce evidence against her.

No longer can she claim the protection of her own country, the land where she was born and where the millions that made her the dollar princess were made.

She is buying the best legal talent in England, but I have a feeling that she must feel very lonely and very far from home.

"I have discovered," Count Haugwitz-Reventlow said to me, "that my wife loves America very much. If Barbara wants to go home—and home to her will always be America—we will go home."

But that was two years ago and that promise was never fulfilled.

Instead, by some unbelievable pressure, by some startling sequence of events, Barbara came home only to turn her back forever upon the country her husband told me she loved.

Yet she's still an American girl, fighting among foreigners, to protect her only son and the millions left her by an American pioneer.

DIDN'T LIKE SOCIETY

How does it happen that the granddaughter of Frank W. Woolworth—who is after all only an American girl in her 20's—finds herself in so strange a predicament?

Much is said today of Barbara Hutton's social ambitions. Of her desire to conquer the innermost portals of London society.

It is alleged that she bought Winfield House, one of the most famous and magnificent mansions in London, because she wanted to entertain there and make herself an important London hostess, spending her millions upon social conquest.

Yet Barbara Hutton once said to me:

"I don't give a hoot about social position. We haven't any social position, really. How could we have?

"If we didn't have all this money we wouldn't be in the social register." And a funny, very honest little smile came over her face.

"After all," she said, "I'm only two generations removed from the dish pan and it's a favorite delusion of mine that if I had to go back to it I could do a pretty good job. I'm very proud of my ancestors, you know."

She said that knowing it would find its way into print. Said it in the only interview she granted to any representative of the press.

Yet she is accused of marrying two foreign titles for social prestige —a Georgian prince and a Danish count. Of liking to be called "your highness" and "milady."

That wasn't why she married them, as you will see.

PROUD OF ANCESTORS

There is still a lot of the Woolworth spirit and purpose in Babe Hutton. That is one reason for her separation from Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow, I think.

"I am very proud of my ancestors" said the countess.

Her most famous ancestor, of course, was Frank W. Woolworth, who came from a Pennsylvania farm, with a few dollars in his pocket, to start the chain of five-and-ten cent stores that piled up the millions Barbara inherited.

Pioneer farm stock. A young man without any influence or capital who succeeded in the good old traditional American way—because he had an idea.

"Do people realize that I have no more to do with running the Woolworth stores than I have with running the British empire?" Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow said to me.

"Why, if I so much as put my nose inside the offices of the men who run that company I daresay they'd ask me to leave as quickly as they would ask anybody else—maybe quicker."

That is true. Yet her mother was the favorite daughter of Frank W. Woolworth. The early death of her mother was the first tragedy in Barbara's life.

MISSES HER MOTHER

"I never knew her—I hardly remember her," Barbara said, "I have missed her all my life. I think any girl's life takes on a different pattern when she is brought up without a mother."

In the early part of this century, Edna Woolworth—one of the three daughters of the already fabulously rich Five and Ten Cent store magnate—married young Frank Hutton.

It was a love match. Frank Hutton was considered a catch, even for a Woolworth heiress. He was one of the handsomest young men in New York, and one of the most charming.

And Edna Woolworth was pretty and gentle and very lovable. The Hutton social position was much more important then than the Woolworth. And Young Franklyn was already making money in partnership with his brother, Edward F. Hutton.

They were a very happy pair, Franklyn Hutton and his pretty, gentle wife, Edna Woolworth Hutton. And they were even happier when in November, 1912, a daughter was born to them, a daughter who was christened Barbara.

NEVER HAD REAL HOME

I don't suppose it ever occurred to pretty Mrs. Hutton as she buttoned Barbara's little warm coats, combed out her pretty blonde curls, tucked her in bed at night, that her little girl would grow up without her, and grow up with so many millions that her whole life would be thrown out of balance.

But so it happened.

Little Barbara was only five, a plump blonde little thing rather like the doll you always wanted for Christmas, when her mother died suddenly.

But it wasn't until she was 11 that she discovered that she was to be sole heiress to one-third of the vast Woolworth fortune.

The years between were strange years for little Barbara. Perhaps it was in those formative and important years that she acquired her love of travel, her hatred of staying long in one place, her desire to be always going places and seeing things.

Her travels began when she was only five, when she no longer had a mother to make a home for her and her father. I doubt very much that with all her money Barbara Hutton has ever had a real home.

DAD SETTLES PROBLEM

What was to become of the little girl Edna Woolworth Hutton had left motherless? Where should she go? Who would bring her up?

There was plenty of competition for the job. The Woolworths wanted her, wanted to bring her up their way. Aunt Helena Woolworth McCann, who had married into the most exclusive inner social circles of New York, wanted her.

Aunt Jessie Donahue, who was to Barbara the most enchanting person she knew, wanted to bring her up with her own boys.

Out in the magnificent house at Glen Cove, Long Island, her grandfather and grandmother lived—and there was even a little talk that the motherless child might go there.

But her grandmother wasn't well, and the illness made her forgetful, and so it was deemed best that little Barbara should only go there for visits.

Her father settled the matter without any argument. He had lost his adored young wife. He didn't intend to give up his daughter. He was quite capable of bringing her up himself.

He and his wife had talked about Barbara's future many times. He knew what she wanted for her little girl. He would take Barbara with him.

ALONE AND UNHAPPY

Very soon after that they started for California—the handsome young widower, whose very real grief for his wife's death still could not altogether dim his exuberant spirits, Frank Hutton loved life. He loved excitement and companionship and people and making money in the stock market.

Little Barbara had grown fatter and she wasn't so pretty when she was ten. The awkward age. And she was never quite happy away from her father.

She was a very lonely child, living a strange nomad existence.

And then came a sequence of events which were to make her the dollar princess, one of the richest girls in the world . . . give her more money than she knew what to do with, more money than she could spend or give away.

If it had been a million dollars, or five million dollars—Barbara Hutton might have been a normal, happy young woman, might have married a clean young American, had an American home and an American family.

But $20,000,000 that was to grow before she was 21 into almost $50,000,000!

"You can't imagine," Barbara Hutton told me, "what $50,000,000 does to your life. Of course, I love having money—I love buying beautiful things—being able to travel—but—it has its burdens and its drawbacks, though people never seem to believe that."

Her life soon became a constant round of visits. Sometimes she was welcome, sometimes she was not.

There was family friction and family jealousy, as there always must be in all families, and in this case it was increased by Barbara's enormous personal wealth and her growing freedom.

"It's just because you've got so much money" her cousins told her.

Already, even when she was a child, everything was based for her upon her money. She must be careful what friends she made—they might be after her money.

She must be careful later on about the young men she knew—they might want her money. Looking in her mirror and finding herself much too plump, a very ordinary looking little girl, so she thought, it began to engrave itself deeply upon her brain that the only thing anybody ever thought about where she was concerned was her money.

Then, when she was 14, her father married again. And when she was 15, long before anyone thought of it, long before most people even remember it, she met Prince Alexis Mdivani.

Royal Swedes Arrive Tonight

were Count Gyllenstolpe, Count and Countess Bernardotte and Minister and Mrs. Wollmar F. Bostrom.

The royal guest went at once to the Ochre Point estate of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Bogert after arrival at the New York Yacht Club dock. There he was the guest of honor at a dinner for 56 of Newport's socially prominent.

Following dinner, Prince Bertil attended the dance held in his honor by his hosts, giving a large share of his attention to pretty Miss Leslie Bogert. He wore informal dark trousers and a white coat and chatted continuously.

GUEST AT PICNIC

Miss Jane Pope of Newport and New York was the picnic hostess for the beach party, which was to attract 100 of the leaders of the Newport set.

The more formal aspects of the royal visit will be evident tomorrow when Americans of Swedish descent gather in a dozen places to hear and see the Crown Prince, his wife and son.

Crown Prince Gustaf and Princess Louis will go directly to the Ritz Carleton Hotel on their arrival in town. They wish quiet and privacy, the former still resting from serious illness which detained him in New York.

Their first official appearance will be at a luncheon at the Brookline Country Club. They then will appear as guests of honor at a reception in Boston Garden at 2:30 p. m.

More than 800 persons will honor them at a dinner tomorrow night at the Copley-Plaza, where Governor Hurley will extend greetings of the Commonwealth.

HONOR AT HARVARD

On Monday morning, Crown Prince Gustaf will receive an honorary degree at Harvard and then lunch with President and Mrs. James B. Conant. In the afternoon, they will visit the museums of the university and at 8:10 p. m. leave by train for Rochester, N. Y.

A large police detail, made up mostly of officers who are of Swedish descent, will be at service of the visitors during their stay here.

Commander Hamilton Bryan, U. S. N., will accompany the party as official naval aide.

Prince Bertil and his party will motor from Newport to Boston, starting at 9 a. m. Sunday.

Cheering throngs are expected to assemble along the route which includes Fall River, Taunton, Easton, Brockton, Avon, Randolph, Milton and Brookline.

A 45-minute stop is scheduled at the Children's Home in Avon, where Prince Bertil will speak.

Governor Hurley, Mayor Tobin and August Johnson are listed as speakers at the Boston Garden reception.

Well, So This Is Newport

ROYALTY HERE—Prince Bertil, son of Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, pictured with Mrs. H. E. Manville as the royal visitor to New England arrived in Newport last night where they were feted at a round of social whirls. He'll be in Boston tomorrow for the tercentenary celebration at the Boston Garden.

AS ALL NEWPORT FETED ROYALTY — Countess Folk Bernadotte, shown here with Wollmar Bostrom, Swedish minister, was one of the guests of honor at a dinner last night to Prince Bertil given by Newport society leaders. The countess is a cousin of the Swedish Prince.

Duce Would War On World Reds

ROME, July 9 (AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini today announced Italy's readiness to combat Bolshevism "on a European or world-wide scale" if such a combat should become necessary "to decide the fate of the continent."

Il Duce's defiant statement was made in a preface he wrote to a volume of Fascist grand councils acts covering decisions of the past three years.

Mussolini wrote that the acts were being published "while victory is within the grasp of (Spanish Insurgent Generalissimo (Franco's armies, notwithstand French-Russian aid.

"The event is of enormous importance. It is the first time—but will it be the last?—in which blackshirts have confronted Bolshevist forces and those of immortal principles on the international field."

Windsor Wins Golf Bet From 'Doug'

CAGNES-SUR-MER, France, July 9 (INS)—The Duke of Windsor was one up—in lunches—on Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., today. The duke won a luncheon bet from the former film star in a golf match, although the winner was not decided until after the food had been eaten.

They were all square at the eighth hole and halved the ninth when the Duke proposed that they finish after luncheon.

Babs' Count Denies Row With Brother

Copyright, 1938

LONDON, July 9—In the first statement he has given to any newspaper or news agency since his arrival in England, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow today emphatically denied that his quarrel with Countess Barbara had led to any split between himself and his elder brother, Count Henry.

Informed that a story had been printed in the United States reporting a family rift, Count Court authorized International News Service to say for him:

"Reports of a disagreement between myself and Count Henry are not true."

While it is said that the count is still open to a "peace" arrangement, the Woolworth heiress remains cold.

She is prepared to take the stand next Wednesday when the trial is resumed.

Hope Dims For Saving Bartolini

Oscar Bartolini, doomed to die for the murder of Grayce Asquith, Weymouth widow, was a step nearer the chair today, his hope for an eleventh-hour "break" fading.

An ad inserted in the Boston Evening American yesterday by his counsel, seeking to get in touch with a mysterious "Bee," who seven months ago offered information vital to the case, remained unanswered.

Bartolini himself could offer no hint of who "Bee" might be. On December 1, 1937, "Bee" wrote Bartolini's counsel:

"If you will publish a personal addressed 'Bee' and promise immunity for me and absolute protection from publicity, a letter to you will immediately follow with information I think will help Bartolini."

For seven months the doomed man's counsel neglected the letter. Yesterday they complied with the mysterious request as a last resort to save their client, scheduled to die between July 20 and 30.

There was still hope, they pointed out, that "Bee" will hear of the ad and come foward with the information.

Thomas of Oklahoma Waits Roosevelt's Aid

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S TRAIN, En Route to Oklahoma City, July 9 (AP) — President Roosevelt, anxious to keep his friends in the Senate, advanced today toward Oklahoma's political battleground.

The day's engagements took him into the Democratic senatorial primary fight involving Senator Elmer Thomas, Governor E. W. Marland and Representative Gomer Smith. The President was expected to give the edge in his Oklahoma appearances to Thomas, a loyal administration supporter.

During stumping across Ohio and Kentucky yesterday, Roosevelt gave a verbal push to the candidacies for renomination of Senators Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio and Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky.

BIG SPEECH TONIGHT

He was especially emphatic about Barkley, the Senate majority leader, contending in four talks that present-day problems demand the understanding of national-minded lawmakers of the Barkley type.

The President's Oklahoma schedule called for platform appearances at McAlester and Shawnee and a big speech tonight at Oklahoma City's state fair grounds. Speeding across Arkansas, he arranged a platform talk at Bonneville.

Thomas and Marland wired White House secretaries that they would ride the train through part of their state.

MANY TO JOIN PARTY

Senator Josh Lee and three Oklahoma representatives, Lyle H. Boren, Wilburn Cartwright and Will Rogers, also arranged to join the presidential entourage.

Governor Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri and Arkansas Senators Hattie W. Caraway and John E. Miller were also expected to board the special. Elliott Roosevelt planned to come aboard before his father reached Fort Worth.

The manner in which the President would promote the candidacy of Thomas remained in doubt up until speakng time.

ALL WAS HARMONY HERE—Governor Happy Chandler and Senator Barkley, who are waging a bitter fight for the senatorship, both turned out to greet President Roosevelt on his arrival in Kentucky. Shortly after this ride ended, the President chided Chandler as too young to match the value of Barkley, and called for the re-election of the present senator. And when the oratory ceased, they both claimed victory.

Bulkley Scoffs At 'Endorsement'

COLUMBUS, O., July 9 (AP)—Senator Robert J. Bulkley said today he did not consider friendly remarks directed toward him by President Roosevelt as a "public endorsement," but George White, opponent of Bulkley in the Democratic senatorial primary, commented that they "didn't do any harm."

Kennedy Says Peace Binds U. S., Britain

DUBLIN, July 9 (INS)—Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to Britain, predicted at a state banquet in his honor here today that the American, the Irish and the British peoples will always hereafter live at peace with each other.

Concluding a two-day visit to the new State of Eire, which recently concluded a treaty with England, the ambassador referred to his own Irish ancestry when he said:

"Between my country, the United States, and Great Britain, there have been two wars. Happily there never will be another.

"Between this land of my fathers and the British there have been many wars. Happily, there never will be another.

"The broad Atlantic washes all our shores and, as I consider the policies of Prime Minister de Valera, of the British crown, and of President Roosevelt, I see a joint determination that blood shall not flow in this ocean again."

Kennedy spoke in the presence of a distinguished audience of foreign and Irish diplomats, including leaders of the Eire government and its parliamentary opposition.

The ambassador declined to be drawn into the debated issue of Ireland's existing partition between Eire and Ulster (northern Ireland), declaring on that topic:

"My dearest wish is for the peace and happiness of the British, Irish and American peoples but I cannot directly interfere in such a matter."

Lewis Purges Deal Critics

(Copyright, 1938)

WASHINGTON, July 9 (INS)—With President Roosevelt devoting his western tour to "principles, not personalities," John L. Lewis, CIO czar, emerged today as the leader of the drive to purge the Democratic party of its New Deal critics.

Using labor's Nonpartisan League, CIO political affiliate, as a campaign organization, Lewis hopes to defeat a long list of Democratic members of Congress, who failed to give the New Deal loyal support in the last two years.

At the same time, he will throw CIO support to a list of loyal New Dealers, who stood by the President's legislative program.

The CIO purge list might as well have been written in the White House, because it includes all those members of Congress who broke from time to time with the President on legislative issues.

The American Federation of Labor and the Railway Brotherhoods meanwhile will have their own private lists of congressional members, separated into "for and against" groups. The AFL test, however, will not be loyalty to the New Deal.

Farley Endorses Duffy for Senate

RIPS OUT STITCHES

He was taken there from Emerson Hospital, where, police said, the battle he waged with doctors who stitched his wounds resulted in refusal to permit him to remain at the hospital.

He was alleged to have ripped the stitches out once and furiously objected to his wounds being closed up again. On the way to the barracks, according to police, Dunlap fought with two officers, who had difficulty in placing him in a cell.

Because of the confusion and the fact that the prisoner had been searched once in the hospital, officers failed to remove his belt.

Two hours after Dunlap's wife Mrs. Grace Dunlap, had talked to him in his cell, Dunlap's body was found swinging from the top of the cell door, the belt tight about his neck.

WOMAN, 75, KILLED

Victim of the crash was Mrs. Clara Page Fay, 75, of Wheaton, Ill., who was hurled through the windshield when Dunlap's car, allegedly driven at 70 miles an hour on the left side of the turnpike, struck the auto in which she was riding.

Critically injured at Emerson Hospital today were Miss Alice M. Theobald, 60, of Magazine street, Cambridge; Miss Helen B. Bedell, 35, of same address; Mrs. Elizabeth F. Taylor, 55, of Wheaton Ill., and Joshua B. Taylor, 25, grandson of the dead woman. All were riding with Mrs. Fay.

Following an investigation Lieutenant John F. McLaughlin of the State police issued the following statement:

"Chester I. Dunlap was drunk. Driving a car on the Concord turnpike, he struck another car, in which a woman was killed. He was taken to the Emerson Hospital for treatment. He was a boisterous and very rough individual.

LIVED IN BROOKLINE

"He was taken to the Concord barracks after treatment. He was asleep when his wife arrived. She came in and awakened him. After he talked with his wife for some time she left. He hanged himself in his cell about 10:55.

"He was cut down and pronounced dead by Dr. O. L. Clark of Concord and Dr. Henry C. Marble of Boston"

According to police, Dunlap was "wild" following his arrest They said he ripped off the bandages covering cuts and pulled out the stitches which had closed up his injuries. He was not told immediately, they said, that a woman had died in the crash.

Dunlap had formerly lived in John street, Brookline, but had recently moved to North Acton.

His Love Problem:

Can 2 Widows Be 1 Wife?

JUDSON VAN ARSDALE

Finds It Pays—Too Well—To Advertise

MATAWAN, N. J., July 9 (AP)—Judson Van Arsdale, 59, a widower, would like to marry either of two widows.

Both of the widows would like to marry Jud.

It can't be done: so the widows, working as housekeepers, are living at Jud's Jackson street home, pending an inspiration.

Jud, who started it all with a matrimonial ad, scratched his head today and allowed as how the whole thing ought to straighten itself out in "a day or two." But he didn't say how.

He did say, however, that he felt lonely, wanted a wife, and inserted the ad. Of 80 swift replies he narrowed the field down to one, a 57-year-old brunette from Washington.

He sent her rail fare and she arrived, but left suddenly one day to attend a sick daughter.

Jud said he wasn't sure she'd return so he sent rail fare to another of the original 80—a Paris, Ill., blonde of some 40-odd years. She came, saw, and conquered Jud's heart.

Wedding bells were in the very near offing when prospect number one returned.

Jud couldn't make up his mind—still can't.

Both women, he said, are "good housekeepers," and "wonderful women."

The widows think Jud's okay, too.

Out of 'Iron Lung' 25 Mins.

CHICAGO, July 9 (INS)—Fred Snite, Jr., "The Iron Lung Kid," today was removed from his mechanical respirator for the longest period of time — 25 minutes—since he was stricken with the dread infantile paralysis more than a year ago in China.

His father, Fred Snite, Sr., wealthy Chicagoan, reported that his son was able to breathe normally without the aid of the mechanical lung, which artificially forces the paralyzed lungs to function.

The former Notre Dame student later took a 25-mile ride through the suburbs of Chicago in his specially-constructed trailer.

Fete Everett Pair In Winchester

Beneath gaily colored lights above the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Baldwin, in Winchester, Miss Helen Traill and her fiance, Lawrence Sjostedt, both of Everett, were entertained by 50 of their relatives and friends at a surprise garden party.

The couple whose engagement was recently announced had come to "Ardley Hill," the Baldwin estate, ostensibly for an evening of bridge. As the couple entered the estate the gaily colored lights were switched on disclosing their friends.

ROCHESTER, Ind., July 9 (AP)—Today's fish story:

When the blade hit the water, Smith said, the fish leaped into the boat. Smith paddled it into submission.

Reds, Fascists Get No R. I. Aid, Says Gov. Quinn

PROVIDENCE, July 9 (AP)—Replying to a protest from Francis J. Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers of America, against the recent arrest of three Communists in Woonsocket, Governo Robert E. Quinn declared today that "while the constitutional liberties of our citizens will be protected, no enemy either foreign or domestic of our form of government will be given the slightest aid or comfort in this state."

The governor assured Gorman that freedom of speech, the press and peaceable assembly would be protected in Rhode Island but pointed out that "Communism or Fascism would destroy the very liberties to which you refer."

"We want none of these doctrines in Rhode Island," he said.

Saltonstall, Buckley Hit Hurley Relief Deadlock

Leverett Saltonstall, former Speaker of the House, and State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley joined hands today in assailing the deadlock between the governor and the Republican led legislators on relief measures, and pleaded for a quick solution to the controversy.

In a speech before the Weymouth Democratic town committee, Buckley scored the politics now being played by the so-called leders of both parties."

"Let us have an end to useless bickering and being about a constructive program, partly bond issue and above all the appropriation and use of the $9,000,000 now available in the highway fund," he said.

"Let the appropriation be hedged about by proper restrictions against political use of such funds, but let the money be created to provide jobs for the men and taxpayers of the state."

Saltonstall, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, suggested in an open letter to Hurley that both he and the leaders of the Republican Legislature "throw politics out the window" and compromise upon special public works projects to be supervised by a non-partisan agency.

Meanwhile, Governor Hurley was preparing a new financial message for the Legislature when it meets on Tuesday. He would not say whether this was the supplementary budget which the Republicans have demanded before enacting relief measures.

Three North End Bandits Hunted

Police today sought three bandits who robbed Miss Lena Stone, bookkeeper for the Jewish Advocate, Causeway street, North End, of $38 but failed in plans to seize the paper's $500 payroll.

Apparently believing Miss Stone was carrying the roll in her purse, one of the bandits grabbed the purse, then fled with companions in an auto. She had brought the payroll to the office hours earlier.

Confesses Eye-for-Eye Killing

DAYTON, O., July 9 (AP)—Harold Earl Kuntz, a 30-year-old meat cutter, calmly confessed today to killing his stepfather after "waiting 15 years," police said.

The stepfather, George Elmer Smith, 61, WPA worker, was shot dead on the porch of his home late last night.

"I waited 15 years for this," police quoted Kuntz. "He murdered my mother and shot out my right eye. I finally got him."

Police records showed that Smith fatally shot his first wife, Mrs. Lily Kuntz Smith, 43, in a quarrel and Kuntz lost an eye and was wounded in the arm. Smith pleaded guilty in 1922 and was pardoned from a life term in 1924.

HOURLY PLAY-BY-PLAY IN THE STOCK MARKET

After an indecisive opening, stocks found enough friends to push values up from fractions to a point. Aircrafts were in the van of the little rise.

10-11. The stock market barely moved after the opening gong sounded. Sellers nad buyers were at a standoff. Selected issues came in for a little attention before the period had progressed very far. Feebie recovery trens predominated and the majority of stocks showed slight gains. Aircrafts followed through their upside tries of the previous session and the market looked better. Volume was very small when compared to that of recent Saturdays.

11. Nothing happened worth comment. The market apparently would like to work higher but is lavin gtrouble finding buyers. Prices higher by a point or so.

Old Harbor Head Denies Project Only 40 P. C. Full

Reports that Old Harvor Village was only 40 per cent occupied and that it was difficult to find enough tenants were denied today by John J. Meade, manager of the South Boston Federal housing project.

"We could fill every apartment over night," Meade declared. "However, we choose to carry out the edicts of the housing act and see that those intended for the apartments are the eventual occupants.

"There are 1016 apartments in Old Harbor Village. Right now there are 556 leased, with 200 more applicants ready for approval by the Boston Housing Authority next week.

"We also have more than 7000 applications to consider, but naturally we want to fill our apartments with those who are most deserving of the homes."

In answer to charges that widows and widowers were barred, Meade said:

"That is not true. A widow or a widower with a family may move in.

"The only cases where widows or widowers are barred are where they are the sole members of a family. Under such circumstances, their welfare can be better taken care of elsewhere, where they won't be alone."

New U. S. Pact With England Is Rumored

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

There are many observers in the State street district who either believe, or have a hunch, that the news spotlight is going to be turned from markets and recovery signs to international events of the greatest importance.

Already London is alive with rumors of an Anglo-American agreement covering trade and war debts with a flotation her of a new British loan hitched in with a related currency stabilization plan.

It is a large order. But one which could be filled. And those who think it will be, and soon, draw attention to the fact that the administration's premier financial expert, Joseph P. Kennedy, is not only in London but has had ample opportunity to survey the scene.

TOO MUCH RESISTANCE

The market ran into too much stock at the highs of the week to make further progress. And while another stab at new highs may be made next week we do not look for it to be successful. On Wednesday and Thursday of this week we listed in the column the forces working for recovery. Their existance is undeniable and ultimate success seems inevitable. But they have not yet produced enough tangible gains to warrant any dreams of a straight upmove.

* * *

Prices as we view the market's outlook are now depending on internal forces for a further lift. A rush of professional buying operating against a stale short account might provide the impetus needed to establish new highs. But it would be impossible for the careful trader and the conscientious investor to place faith in the price levels that would result.

STATE ST. NOTEBOOK

If those with an interest in the market followed just one rule, that of doing the "normally" right thing, they would consistently make money over a period of years . . . and right now the normally right thing to do is recognize the fact prices have outfooted trade improvement by a considerable margin . . . relationships are distorted.

* * *

The recovery year 1932 has come in for a lot of attention lately . . . most of it in attempts to justify hopes of additional big gains by stocks . . . one feature is either deliberately overlooked or lost sight of in the rosy haze of new found hope . . . and it is this: In that year stocks did not make progress after August, the second month of rise, but trade kept going strong until the end of the year.

Haney Reveals Faults of Deal

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)
(Special to Boston Evening American)

NEW YORK, July 9—Milwaukee says: "So far I have never read one single cause of the depression from your pen—not one cause cited for the 'for sale' signs on every 10th house, the unemployment, the thousands of locomotives rusting away. Why do you blame the government?"

Answer: I blame the New Deal administration, because its policies are responsible for the backwardness of private investment and enterprise. This, in turn, is the cause of the conditions you mention.

The New Deal has abandoned the principle of a definite and reasonably stable standard for our money. It has aided and abetted radical labor organizations (the CIO). It has imposed discriminatory taxes, and otherwise threatened business. It has stood for "social planning," which means state socialism.

Under these conditions capital and business enterprise can not thrive. Therefore, investments in new plant and equipment are withheld, and buildings are not constructed.

As a result, the heavy capital goods industries are depressed, and that means unemployment. It means lack of traffic for railways.

The essence of the New Deal is business uncertainty. It puts incalculable political and personal whims in place of economic forces. Nothing kills business as fast as uncertainty of this sort.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., asks: "Is it not true that the line between business and government is not as sharp as it used to be, and that the bigger business gets, the more it tries to invade the field of government?"

Answer: I think that business may get so big that it tends to be bureaucratic and to act as government does. This is bad for business, and tends to cause government control.

But I do not believe that this is a new or a necessary condition. As long as business survival depends upon efficiency in buying, technical operations, and selling the government can not succeed in business.

It is only when monopoly or special privilege, or sheer political power becomes the main factor, that business and politics mix.

Hub Insurance Leader Sees Business Gain

In spite of a slump early in the year, insurance executives in Boston were found today to be sharing in the general wave of optimism in the business outlook, as a result of the recent improved trend in various lines.

Jay R. Benton, former attorney-general, who is president of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company, said yesterday he felt that the low point of industrial inactivity had been passed, and that better times were indicated for the balance of the year.

"Under the influence of the advance in security prices, one of the most sensational for any single week in the history of the market," said President Benton yesterday, "increasing confidence in the outlook is spreading in the business world."

BUSINESS GAINING

"The bottom of the existing business depression seems to have been reached.

"While the June figures of the Federal Reserve Board Index of the general industrial production have not yet been published, prior reports indicate that the low point of industrial inactivity is behind us.

"From now on business will be on the upgrade for the remainder of the year and the summer months will see an upturn of gradually increasing proportions, with a market advance in the closing months of the year.

"The progress of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company has been quite satisfactory through the 'hard time months' of the year. Production of all new paid-for business for the first five months this year amounted to nearly $10,000,000.

"These writings were 9 per cent better than the average percentage figure shown in the last report of the 37 United States mutual companies having 82 per cent of the total admitted assets of all legal reserve companies.

COLLECTIONS BETTER

"Operating gains for the first five months showed an increase of 77 per cent over the same period last year. The weekly report as of June 22, and from all district of offices, showed collections better than 95 per cent.

"Reflecting the decision of life companies generally, investments have continued at a slow pace. This is due to the fact that there have been so few offerings of high grade bonds, and, those that have been available, have been unattractive, from a yield standpoint.

"Because of this slower investment program, cash bank deposits are substantially bigger than earlier this year. At the close of business Tuesday night this figure was $602,833 as compared with $396,295, three months ago."

In view of Mr. Benton's prominence in the insurance field and the fact that the insurance trade is one of the chief barometers of economic conditions, his statement was regarded as highly important.

I asked my wife if she remembered whether or not we had grandfather for Thanksgiving last year.

Car-Loadings, Prices Climb

With car-loadings at their highest level of the year, cotton prices booming and commodity prices generally firm in the New York market, regained optimism of business leaders seemed well justified today.

"Pent-up buying power will soon be demanding new products from manufacturers and new aggressiveness from sales organizations," asserted Harry R. Chapman, president of the National Confectioners Association and general sales manager of the New England Confectionary Company.

AIR TRAVEL BETTER

New England's recreational business seemed definitely on the upgrade today, as airlines reported a 10 per cent increase in travel to this section of the county.

Real estate agencies and summer property owners in Connecticut said sales and rentals thus far indicated a 1938 turnover likely to be the best in years.

According to a survey sponsored by the New England council, all recreational interests here were preparing, after the 4th of July double week-end, for a heavy mid-summer rush of tourist and vacation trade.

CAR LOADINGS SOAR

Car loadings, as of the week ended July 2, reached a total of 558,864, a new high for the year.

This represented a sharp advance over the previousu week's total, which was only 556,937.

Earlier high of the year was in January, when a week's total of 550,600 cars were reported.

The new upward trend in car loadings was observed approvingly by the large number of business experts agreeing that freight traffic is the real barometer of prosperity.

Move to Beautify Hero Park Abroad

Governor Hurley moved today to correspond with French authorities and arrange for the beautification of St. Mihiel Park in France, memorial for Massachusetts war dead, reported to be "full of waste and other debris."

In a letter to the Governor the Mayor of St. Mihiel asked permission to "turn the site into a public garden and playground."

The Story of Business

- CAPITAL invests the funds
- LABOR contributes the working force
- THE PUBLIC provides the market
- THE GOVERNMENT whose recent entrance as fourth partner has hampered business.

The first step to restore natural economic and industrial conditions should be the immediate withdrawal of undue government interference.

Preserve and protect American IDEALS and INSTITUTIONS.

Private enterprise should be encouraged; it has been the foundation of AMERICAN progress since AMERICA was founded.

Adams and Bruce Wetmore still control the mammoth East Boston plant and will be at the helm again in 1939 . . . Current meeting at Suffolk Downs, concluding this afternoon, will net a right handy profit. Tribute to the untiring efforts of the same Messrs. Adams and Wetmore . . . Notwithstanding reports that were gaining foothold, Lou Smith and Col. C. E. Fauntleroy are not out at Rockingham. Smith is the pioneer of legalized wagering on the galloping gluepots in this Puritanical section and has been instrumental in keeping the picturesque New Hampshire plant before the public these past five years . . . Rockingham made a ten strike in signing Col. David Frothingham Egan as publicity director . . . Plans are underway for a "Eddie Hurley Memorial Handicap" to be run at Suffolk Downs next year . . . Joe DiMaggio, the great "DiMag," giving a Boston nite club a little play. Can it be petite line doll Gloria Gaffey that is attracting his $25,000 a year eyesight? . . .

Sheldon Fairbanks, the Boston sportsman, has rounded together a small but capable racing establishment of thoroughbreds. HiCliff, Star Flower and Candar are included in the makeup of the five horse string.

Cleo O'Donnell predicting a great year for his St. Anselms College gridsters this fall . . . Ralph "Babe" Rubenstein being acclaimed as the classiest race track announcer to perform in New England. Concludes successful Suffolk session today. National network officials showing interest in Rubenstein's work . . . Roger E. Baker, the minor league baseball mogul of a few years ago, making shirts in State Prison. It was only several seasons back that Baker and his Northeastern League was setting the baseball world afire . . . "Brother Screwball," a race track story, being considered by Paramount officials . . . Dan Carroll, the local sportsman, ready to disperse his one horse stable, which includes the two-year-old Curves. Anyone who will give the steed good care please inquire of large Dan . . .

Ralph Williams, state representative from Danvers, a militant go-through guy, tackles the county combine again this fall . . . Ray Funchion, former Boston College hockey captain, is in line for a coaching spot in the good ol' sunny south. He is now assisting Bill Connors, former Springfield College football player, in conducting the North Shore Day Camp . . .

Getaway Special:

Former Gov. James M. Curley, confident that he'll win this fall in bid for new term as governor of the Commonwealth. Between races at the Paddock Club, Suffolk Downs, Curley had time to say, "I'll win just as that favorite has galloped home by four lengths" . . .

By N. F. T.

TWO HOURS OF outdoor concert music in the "Robin Hood Dell" concert series, as wafted with the wind from Philadelphia to all America, features the personalities of Lucy Monroe, striking soprano, and the conducting of Alfred Wallenstein this evening (WAAB) and available from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m.

GETTING THE new big WGY transmitter under way is the cause for a 45-minute gala salute, originating tonight (WNAC) in Schenectady, N. Y. It starts at 10 o'clock and will include all-star entertainment, plus congratulatory speeches by Lenox R. Lohr, president of the National Broadcasting Company. Dr. Frank Black will do the orchestra directing.

EDDIE CANTOR has wirelessed back that he ran into a radio personality he never knew but has heard, meaning Chet Lauck of the "Lum and Abner" sketches, both being passengers aboard the Queen Mary and Europe bound.

NOW THAT "Radio Theater" dramas are vacationing along with so many big "Mike" presentations, Cecil B. De Mille is even deserting his movie supervising for a cruise in Southern California waters aboard his yacht.

ADVICE AS TO how 1¢ spot counterfeit money is yours (WNAC) when Arthur J. B. Cartier, Assistant U. S. Attorney, holds forth locally (WNAC) at 7 o'clock this evening.

A STRICTLY RURAL emphasis will be noted when the "National Barn Dance" is networked (WBZ) at 9 o'clock tonight. Not but what the hour is usually country bumpkin in character, it's just that it becomes particularly hayshaking this evening with a "Back to the Farm" motif prevailing.

Jean Carpenter Has Become Engaged

By BETTY ALDEN

LESS than a year since stepping into the social whirl at a luncheon last October, Jean Carpenter has joined the ranks of engaged girls. Today her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Carpenter, of Swampscott and Boston, are letting their friends in on the secret that Jean is to become the bride of Charles Rogers Miles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Browning Miles, of Brookline.

Jean graduated from the May School in 1937 and made her debut with Deborah Sprague at the Algonquin Club. She and "Debbe" recently returned from a cruise to the Riviera and Africa with their mothers.

Her fiance is a graduate of Noble and Greenough and attended Harvard with the class of 1939. He has a position with the State Street Trust Company and belongs to Spinakers, Longwood Cricket Club and The Country Club. His brother, Jim Miles, was married early last month to Mary Booth Sims of Philadelphia. Jean and Charles are planning a spring wedding.

Wearing a most unusual bridal gown of cream and gold brocade, a treasure handed down from her great grandmother, Eleanor Coolidge is being married this afternoon to Frederick Barnaum Chapman, son of Mrs. George M. Godley, of Greenwich, Ct. Her gown is clouded by an heirloom lace and her veil trailing from a coronet of white flowers and her bouquet embraces the same mellow shades of the gown, gold orchids and cream roses.

"Breezy," as the bride is popularly known, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Coolidge, of Manchester. She has chosen pink tapers for St. John's Church, Beverly Farms, is the scene of her marriage, with a large reception at her Grandmother Coolidge's beautiful estate on Coolidge Point.

Two of the season's debutantes of the '36-'37 season are in the group of bridesmaids down the aisle while her sister Mary and the bridegroom's sister-in-law Mrs. B. Grosvenor Chapman, of New York, serve as honor attendants. The bridesmaids are the Misses Virginia Ware Emmons, of Salem, Evelyn Lane, Harriet Cate, Ann Ayer Lane, Dick Mrs. Henry B. Gallagher and Mrs. Henry T. Wendell. Their picturesque gowns resemble illustrations in Godey's Ladies Book for they are old-fashioned off-the-shoulder creations of cream white taffeta made with full skirts lined with tiny hoop petticoats. There is much lace edging the bodice and the coronets of flowers and bouquets of cream white flowers and bouquets of cream white gladiolus and orchids. The matron of honor's outfit is distinguished from the others by her solid gold color bouquet.

When "Breezy" starts off on the first lap of a honeymoon trip to Bermuda she will don a "going away" costume of pale gray, the matching coat lined with chartreuse silk and a small gray hat with chartreuse veil.

B. Grosvenor Chapman, of New York, is best man for his brother and the usher corps includes the Messrs. Samuel Cabot, Jr., of Boston, G. McMurtrie Godley, step-father of the bridegroom, Frederick Godley, his step-brother, Byron Porter, of New York, and a number of other out of town friends.

Mrs. Coolidge is wearing a gown of dusty blue mousseline with a large blue horsehair hat and Mrs. Godley has chosen blue and peach chiffon with a flowered toque and corsage of hibiscus. Mr. and Mrs. Godley, who have been spending the past week at the Oceanside, Magnolia, have been widely entertained by North Shore residents. Last evening, the entire bridal party was entertained at cocktails by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ward, followed by a dinner given at the Coolidges'.

The bridegroom, a student of aeronautical engineering in Newark, N. J., is a graduate of Taft School and Union College. He and his bride will spend much of their time in Greenwich, Ct.

Mary Haskell Shows She Is Equal to Any Demand Concerning Boats

"HOMEWARD the ploughman plods his weary way" wrote Poet Gray in his famous elegy. But what of the small boat sailor? A ploughman has a hoss to tow his equipment, but at the end of a long day on the water the small boat sailor or sailorette must carry home the mast, sails and other duffle. This picture shows Mary Haskell and her brother, George Haskell, Jr., at the Eastern Yacht Club after a long sail. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Haskell, of Marblehead.

Swedish Dishes That Delighted Visiting Royalty

By MARTHA LEE

Hostesses recently have been pondering over the question of what to serve H. R. H. the Prince Gustaf Adolf and the Princess Louise of Sweden.

Our own First Lady of the land served a hearty meal and treated the couple to American style "hot dogs" such as can be purchased at any roadside stand we read. We're sure they enjoyed the picnic.

We've tried to imagine just what we would do if we were called upon to play hostess. [illegible] royal guests are interested in seeing our true American style [illegible] we all know that a stranger and we [illegible] a dish native to the [illegible].

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

This Mascara Glamourizes And Aids Growth of Lashes

OLIVIA deHAVILAND has naturally lovely eyelashes . . . as you can see by the lower fringes which are quite impossible to achieve through the simple Hollywood expedient of gluing them on! Arline Gould describes an important aid to new eye allure today.

By ARLINE GOULD

WE'VE ALWAYS been on the sentimental side about long eyelashes—along with kittens and, once in a great while, newlyweds. We've never known a man either that wouldn't look a third time at the tangled shadow cast on pretty cheeks by feathery eyelashes . . . so it's a cause of complete mystification, the unheeding way in which eye cosmetics are often chosen.

Eyelashes hang by such a slender anchor to the lids that you should not only choose cosmetics which emphasize them but which will foster and increase their beauty a thousandfold.

Take the subject of mascara for instance. You can scrub on some indeterminate stuff and appear with woodeny eyelashes stiff as a doll's.

Or you can use a French cosmetique mascara which for years and years enhanced the eyes of France's greatest beauties . . . and its unique and individual charm is that it aids the growth and luxuriousness of eyelashes!

The constant drying and stiffening effect of an ordinary mascara causes the lashes to fall and break off, or even to irritate the eyes themselves.

Most smart women of the continent who constantly use eye make-up, day or night, insist upon using a make-up that is widely known to be absolutely harmless and actually good for the lashes.

Dilute the mascara very slightly and use it as an eye shadow. It will have a fetching transparent color without a bit of greasiness.

To learn the name of this fascinating French cosmetique mascara which not only emphasizes the beauty of eyelashes but aids them to grow longer and thicker, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, weekdays until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

USE EYEBROW CRAYON

IF YOU are getting your eyebrows back to normal, permitting plucked fuzzers to grow again, you will probably be vexed with little stubby ends that emerge. That can't be helped. They can be hidden by using the eyebrow crayon lightly. Get a dark one. Black in a bad choice; it offers too great a contrast to the skin.

Dream House Bought by Budget

"Listen to this!" Mr. Potter brains. "Dear Dad: We've bought our dream house and we've already moved in. We'll have more than a pile of rent receipts to show for our money. That blessed Budget Plan did it."

"Budgeting," you ask. "Doesn't that mean a lot of horrid bookkeeping?" No, budgeting is simple.

All you do is find out what you've been spending and what you should spend for items such as food, clothes, rent, entertainment. Then you figure what you can put aside for your pet desire—a home, a car, a fine education.

It's funny but once you start to spend by plan you see chances to save that you never guess at in haphazard spending.

Take your food bill. It goes way up when you haven't the time to check prices. Keep canned goods in reserve for the emergencies when Jim brings the gang home.

Of course you want to have fun—entertain your friends. But remember you and the bunch can have as much fun staging a backyard horseshoe pitching contest as you can have watching a high-priced tennis match.

You can budget successfully with the help of our 46-page booklet HOW TO BUDGET YOUR INCOME. Sample plans from real life. Ruled sheets for a year's records. Simple as your grocery list.

Send 10c for our booklet, HOW TO BUDGET YOUR INCOME, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 39th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Books Aid in Treatment of Many Diseases

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

BIBLIOTHERAPY IS the name given to that form of treatment which consists of reading books. Sometimes the book may be a treatise on the disease the patient has, and sometimes it may be a fiction.

I know one doctor who never starts his day's travels without piling up 10 or 15 books to give his patients. Most of them in his practice have tuberculosis and they lead a [illegible] life [illegible].

There are a large number of books designed for [illegible] patients in certain diseases, [illegible] especially diabetes, [illegible] and arthritis. Magazines by Ruth [illegible] for arthritic patients, [illegible] Julia Wedell's Milk [illegible]. They give [illegible] ing diets, planning [illegible] stering treatments, etc. I [illegible] called a meeting [illegible] Welb [illegible] Marjorie [illegible] struction in [illegible].

Another large group [illegible] deal with [illegible] and problems [illegible] Truth [illegible] by Jackson and [illegible] Human Mind by Menninger, [illegible] covering [illegible] and Appel and Adams's [illegible] You're Going to a Psychiatrist.

But the majority of books in this line concern [illegible] tion of general [illegible].

Patients of nervous [illegible] details themselves with [illegible] acter in a book and [illegible] satisfaction in this way. Instances are in imagination of [illegible] ful and happy, which helps their inferiority complex.

Brother May Present Bride

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN—

When my father dies, not wish to give me away at my wedding, do you think it would be all right for my brother to do this when my father is present at the wedding?

WONDERING

Yes, it would be the reasonable thing for you to have your brother present you in marriage, since your father for any reason is not to take this honor.

Dusty Threatens 'Mike' at Party

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

"I'm very glad to be here, tonight," Ralston went on. "I'd never met Mr. and Mrs. Lee before. Besides most of all, I wanted to know you."

The man was a terrible bore. Mike tried to hide her feelings, but her patience was wearing thin. There was no shaking Ralston. Mike could see that plainly. He was hers for the evening. And she hated him quite thoroughly, by this time, although he was harmless enough. Dusty was watching her with a jaundiced eye.

The party was so boisterous that any talk was difficult. Mike gave up, and Ralston sat there watching the crowd as it milled about the great Dusty.

"Come over here, Mike. I want everybody to see you." Mike heard Dusty was swaying a glass in hand: "Come! Ladies and Gentlemen!" He shouted above the uproar. "Look at her! Here's a girl that doesn't smoke or drink! Look at her, I say. She won't be that way long!" Mike was horribly embarrassed.

"Let the kid alone, Dusty!" Carol tried to intervene.

"Why, so Ralston can mope like he's Carol started at Dusty for a moment and turned away abruptly without answering.

Dusty fell in on Mike's arm then. His strong fingers cut off until she cried out in pain. "Dusty, you don't realize how strong you are."

Oh, I do!" Dusty grinned. "I'm extra proud her doesn't drink!" He leaned on the arm of his chair. "Who's this Ralston guy," he demanded in her ear.

"I don't know."

"Don't lie to me, Dusty was hurting her arm so badly she was crying. Carol was on the other side of the room talking to Ralston.

"I tell you you're hurting. Hank some again. I'll... I'll break your arm!"

DUSTY PERSUADES

Just at that moment two waiters came in the door with the cold buffet. Dusty forgot all about Mike as he started himself out of his chair to become the perfect host.

"I want quiet. Get that room from the cocktail bar to the left." The waiters protested that it was not yet closing time down stairs.

"Make it closing time. I want them up here."

Seeing the man and girl who played the piano at a table in the far window, he motioned.

When Ralston went to the window seat beside Carol, Mike did not know. But she could hear their voices under the cover of the singing. It seemed a long time that the music went on. Finally Dusty sat up. With a gesture of "Let's all go some place for bacon and eggs."

There was a noisy argument about that, of course. Just for a moment Mike managed to whisper into Carol's ear, "May I leave now?"

Carol's petulant voice was shrill as she answered: "You always want to break up a party!" Mike protested no further.

They all trouped downstairs in the elevator after Dusty had put into street clothes. He was determined to eat at an all-night dining car off Michigan avenue. Nothing else would please him. There were three taxi loads of them which piled out at the little lunch room. It was very late.

MIKE IS WITNESS

Suddenly, everybody was very tired. The party was about to break up of its own weight. It had just lasted too long. Part of the crowd went directly to a downtown garage for their cars and in the confusion Mike found herself with Ralston, Carol and two of the men guests in one cab.

Dusty was in the cab which followed with some others. When they got to the hotel, Dusty's cab was not behind them.

"They must have stopped some place," Carol said a worried frown between her eyes.

"Never mind. I'll take you girls to the suite," Ralston suggested. "Dusty will be along in a moment."

As the three walked into the foyer, the telephone in Carol's bedroom was ringing. "Answer it, Mike. I'm too dead to move," Carol said with a moan as she threw her coat onto a chair, and dropped onto the divan. It was Dusty.

"You were home. Where are you?" Mike had to tell him that three times. Dusty started in a long explanation, wanted her and Carol to come to meet him immediately. Mike sank down on one of the twin beds and shifted the phone to her other hand. "Be a good boy, Dusty, and come home."

He roared on. "Is that stuffed shirt Ralston there?"

"No Dusty, he left us at the door."

Mike believed he had. If Ralston had really gone, Dusty promised he come immediately. Mike put the phone back on the hook, stood up and yawned. The door which led from the bedroom directly to the foyer was half open.

Through that two-foot space, Mike could see the shine of the sitting room lamps in the foyer. Then she stopped there in the middle of the bedroom. Reflected in that mirror she could see Carol in Frank Ralston's arms. He was kissing Carol.

Mike her hand over her mouth, breathed deeply for a moment; finally she called out: "Carol it was Dusty. He'll be along in a moment." Then she walked slowly out into the sitting room. Ralston was picking up his hat and stick. Carol was standing composedly by the window.

WOMAN VS. WOMAN

I am delighted to have met you, Mr. Lee. And you, Miss Shannon. I hope I may see you again before you leave town."

There were polite murmurs, and he was gone. Mike and Carol were left facing each other.

Carol kicked off her high heeled pumps, picked up her hat and wrap and waved toward the bedroom in her stocking feet.

"Oh . . . I'm tired. That husband of mine won't be home for hours! I know him." She was composed and casual and her eyes did not falter when they met Mike's.

"Carol!" Mike's voice was metallic. "I'm not going to make a scene tonight. I'm too tired. But I won't be used as an alibi."

Carol turned sleepily around: "Why, honey, what do you mean?"

"You know!"

"I haven't the faintest idea what you're talking about!"

Mike took a step forward: "That won't do, Carol. I know what you told Dusty today. There is nothing I can do about that. But I want to warn you. Don't let it happen . . ." Just then Dusty came swinging in the doorway with a merry "Hello girls." He looked from one to the other. "What are you two rowing over?"

"Nothing, Dusty," Carol answered quickly. She was not scolding me or showing you to the door."

Dusty shrugged his shoulders. "That's what you say. Looks to me as though she was telling you to lay off that boy friend of hers. Just met him at the reception. Where'd he come from anyway, Mike?" She did not answer.

"I haven't any idea. Carol was the one who spoke. Leona brought him. He's a lawyer or something. He seems to have scads of money."

He grabbed several cushions one night . . . a new experience for her. Nobody grabs em when I'm around." Dusty slumped onto the davenport.

"Come along, you're bad Dusty."

"Good night." Mike was out the door and shutting two words behind her. . . . She was glad she could sleep, but it did not seem like five minutes before the telephone rang.

HANDSOME CALLS

"Going to have breakfast with me?" It was Ralston and it was nine o'clock.

"Hi there. Give me ten minutes."

I expect to work today, Skipper."

I'll be right down. Mike dashed into a cool shower. As she dressed hurriedly she peered at herself in the mirror. There were smudges under her eyes.

When she met Handsome 10 minutes later, he looked so radiant as smiling that she wanted to throw herself into his arms and hide from her troubles. Of course she didn't.

"You don't look as good, Skipper. How was the party."

"Pretty bad. I couldn't feel worse. I know, if I'd been drinking, it's the loss of sleep, the smoke and the noise."

"Dusty cut up much?"

"Not much. Only he just wouldn't let us go home. There were scads of people there."

Mike watched Handsome eat one two grapefruit, bacon eggs and a double order of toast, two glasses of milk.

"Thank the Lord, I ducked that party," he said virtuously, and added "Better get some sleep before game time. I'm going to golf. Get there early, if you can."

He smiled at her tired face. "I've read this cat's last forever and let yourself some gardenias and charge them to my account here. You're beautiful." And he was off.

Mike fell back in her room but she could not sleep. She gave up finally, decided to walk down to the lake again. Carol, of course, was still dead to the world.

Mike dreaded seeing Carol alone. She was not ready to put off that meeting as long as possible. So she left. I'm not saving she would be back after luncheon. When Mike came back at one o'clock Carol was gone. She had left no word and Mike was worried not sure whether to leave the Handsome was [illegible]

RALSTON AGAIN!

She waited patiently, afraid to leave for luncheon. At one-thirty she ordered a sandwich and a glass of milk. At two when Carol had not come or sent not telephoned Mike was frantic.

Carol was beaming. She had a few [illegible] Mike knew when she got close to her. She was wearing more or less [illegible]

"I met Mrs. Lee just as she was leaving my box," Ralston said.

I had to see Laura Everett today Mac. She was at the Edgewater. I wouldn't have known Mr. Ralston if he hadn't spoke to me and told me who he was. So I said he'd drive us up."

Carol reached back in the car. "Here," she dropped an open box in Mike's lap. "He got us both orchids. Wasn't that sweet of him."

Mike held the gardenia purple blossom in her hand. It glowed like a flame. There seemed to be nothing [illegible] to put on her hair.

I was [illegible] all you people last night," Ralston [illegible] as he [illegible] there is not the slightest [illegible] want to [illegible] of this game. Stop Destroying Jobs!

"Heavy taxes are very definitely deflationary and are a burden upon all classes, particularly the agricultural and labor classes, because they affect not only their expenses, but their very employment. So heavily deflationary are these taxes that they have effect all reflationary influences."—From a recent address by Congressman Emanuel Celler.

The Editor Says: Representative Celler of New York has made a notable recommendation to put a limit on the power of the Federal Government to confiscate the earning power of individuals.

By limiting the income tax to 25 per cent, he would mark the end of the threat to progress which has existed ever since Chief Justice Marshall enunciated the doctrine that the power to tax is the power to destroy.

By revising the Federal Income Tax Amendment of 1913, the Representative from New York would restore the sovereignty of citizens.

He would stop the existing folly which makes persons in the upper brackets mere appendages of the Government.

Mr. Celler is right in pointing out that past experience shows that the Government collects more receipts at a moderate rate than at a confiscatory rate.

For a rate running up to 75 per cent, as at present, kills incentive and aborts transactions.

RUINOUSLY HIGH RATES are not merely inconvenient for the wealthy, but—still more important—they paralyze risk-prosperity makers and thus make the jobs of the average worker fewer and less secure. Likewise they boost every man's cost of living.

Federal confiscation of income diverts funds to boondoggling which otherwise would be invested in productive tools, which would facilitate the earning power of millions of gainfully employed persons.

A ceiling on income tax rates, though it would provide ample revenues, would in effect put a limit on Federal spending.

The principle would tend to make economy in the management of public affairs MANDATORY.

IT IS INCONSISTENT with a free enterprise system to give the government unrestricted power to conscript individual incomes.

It dries up the fountains and springs from which business progress flows.

It humiliates individuals, and in effect makes them vassals of the politicians, who should be their public servants.

To compel any citizen to work more than one day in four for the common weal registers on the disappearance of individual liberty.

Even with the limit proposed by Mr. Celler, the citizen would still be subject in addition to state and local taxes.

IT WOULD BE FITTING in a country like the United States with multiple jurisdictions to adopt a constitutional limitation on the overall levy which could be exacted from a single income.

The Federal Constitution is a compact designed to prevent even government itself from oppressing the people.

By restating the power of the Federal Government to levy on gifts and inheritance taxes, Mr. Celler would restore the American tradition of giving incentives to individuals to carry on socially useful, job creating activities.

The Political Parade

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

ATLANTA, July 9

PROSPERITY is coming back to the lean South hand-in-hand with a reviving faith in the future.

The change in the national psychology since the adjournment of Congress has been felt in this section of the country in marked degree.

Georgia was never hit with the full force of the depression, and the business recession had only begun to be felt here when the new spending program almost overnight brought it to a halt.

A leisurely tour of the Southern counties of Georgia, from Savannah to the Alabama line, and as far North as Macon and Atlanta, leaves one with little skepticism as to the future if the people, and especially business, will join with government in the forward movement.

COTTON prospects are improving, retail trade has been picking up, textile mills have been increasing their output, and unemployment should soon be on the decline.

In this part of the South a new era of permanent recovery seems at hand.

Government spending runs from another million, to be well expended on Army improvement at Fort Benning, to hundreds of State and municipal projects. Georgia has risen to her opportunities, and her two Senators, George and Russell, are given credit for an alert interest in the State's welfare.

The obsolete system of multiple county government is keeping the taxpayer's nose to the grindstone of a selfish political organization of entrenched greed.

There are 159 counties in this harassed State. Each has its individual set-up, which robs the small farmer, the storekeeper, the poor tenant, and the well-to-do merchant and banker alike. Excessive cost of local government keeps everybody poor and benefits nobody but the greedy politicians, who for selfish reasons manipulate elections and prevent the abolition of a worthless institution.

Of these 159 counties, 153 pay less to the State treasury than they get in return, and six counties pay half of all the State taxes.

VOTING in Georgia is by the county unit system, and thus a vast number of thinly populated counties, some of them with fewer than 10,000 people, control the politics of the State. Georgia will never come into her own, whatever the administration in Washington may do, until she has shaken off this expensive and reactionary system.

Kindness to Animals Founded on Science

Seventy years ago, George T. Angell founded the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. He was a man who devoted himself to the quirks, trials, woes and sensibilities of dumb animals.

TODAY the Angell Memorial Hospital is a monument to his devotion.

Below is a brief sketch of what the society has done over the years and what TOMORROW may bring in the science of be-kind-to-animals.

By WILLIAM MICHELFELDER
Boston Evening American Staff Writer

This is the reception room for cats.

The cat, grapefruit yellow, with saucer-blue eyes, squirms in the arms of the lady and makes a squeaking meow. If he hasn't been eating the wrong kind of mouse, it's the weather, or his temperament.

Dr. Rudolph H. Schneider, assistant chief veterinarian, gently pokes the pink nose, makes a quick examination. A clerk writes down the name of the patient:

"Beans, age six months, male."

Beans is filed away in a drawer with 24,667 other cats and he is now a patient at the Angell Memorial Hospital.

Now the reception room at the hospital is not devoted exclusively to cats. The clientele included a Russian wolfhound with a wheeze, a tiny Spitz with a bad disposition, a collie with bad teeth and another cat, this one with a lame foot.

Dr. Schneider

Dr Schneider whisks his patients to the clinic a snow-white room of gleaming tile and scrubbed floors. He has three examination departments, with tables for five patients, a pharmacy stocked with animal tonics and a new clinical laboratory.

Beyond lies the horse clinic. Did you ever think of putting a horse on an operating table?

Dr. Schneider explained:

"In the uninitiated, the humane way of placing an animal of the strength and size of a horse on a table rendering him unconscious by the use of anesthetics, and thereby a fit subject would be a process involving great difficulties.

"Such procedure here, however, has been made simple and practical by mechanical means."

It consists of noiseless pulleys and other scientific equipment.

The hospital is unquestionably fireproof.

The horses have rooms and private wards or just wards. All are heated and lighted, as conditions may require. All wards and private rooms are ventilated by electric fans with all doors and windows carefully screened in the summer.

Upon the second floor Dr. Schneider introduced the "department of small animals." There also were wards and private rooms, operating room, X-ray department, food kitchen and a beauty parlor.

During the "recuperation period" the animals promenade, exercise gently and do everything except read in bed.

Dr. Schneider continued:

"Every kind of patient has found its way here, from an elephant to the lowly crab with a damaged claw. One of the most interesting things which prove animals do not resent intelligent treatment is THAT MANY ANIMALS FIND THEIR WAY BACK TO THE HOSPITAL FOR A "SOCIAL CALL" LONG AFTER THEY HAVE BEEN DISMISSED.

"While the society has a representative or agent in almost every town and city in Massachusetts, there are many who still believe its only function is to prosecute positive acts of cruelty.

"This is a narrow conception of the society.

"IN ONE MONTH, THE SOCIETY WAS CALLED UPON TO INVESTIGATE 1250 COMPLAINTS, RECEIVED BY LETTER, TELEPHONE OR FROM THOSE CALLING IN PERSON. FORTY-ONE CASES WERE TAKEN INTO COURT AND WE SECURED FORTY CONVICTIONS.

No less vigilant are the society's agents who check up on places where live cattle, sheep and swine are received for slaughter. They also watch the transportation of animals on railroad trains.

"Our agents have set an example of aggressiveness and activity.

"WE SHOULD DISSEMINATE THE TRUTH, ALL OF US, THAT ONE OF THE WAYS TO IMPROVE CIVILIZATION IS CHANGE THE CONDITIONS AFFECTING DUMB ANIMALS.

"Cruelty is contemptible and degrading. Kindness is the greatest promoter of happiness and justice, mercy and compassion are the noblest of all virtues.

"The world's greatest need is MORE EDUCATION OF THE HEART. Time, the tendency, and the trend of human conduct has proved it."

(Another TODAY and TOMORROW feature will appear in Monday's Boston Evening American.)

Listen, World!

by Elsie Robinson

HAVE YOU A GREEN THUMB? Don't be startled. It isn't a disease. To the contrary, it's one of the bonniest knacks that the human soul can achieve. Julian Meade told about it in the June issue of COSMOPOLITAN. Said he:

Elsie Robinson

'Not long ago I heard some Negroes discussing the mystery and belief of a dark skinned man named George.

'That George, he's a case in this town, said one. His whole yahd choked out some bushes what they was up for dead as a door nail. George he taken them and carts home with him an set 'em out. Well, people, you can see in that shack of his on Peckham Hill an see them same bushes all bloomin' like springtime. I do believe the good Lawd done give George a green thumb for growin'.

'A green thumb for growing!' Julian Meade went on to show what that contact with leafy life has done for sick and bewildered humanity . . . and for those whose four-walled careers kept them from vital contact with the earth.

THERE WAS Madame Curie, the immortal scientist whose power would seem to have been drawn from test tubes and retorts. But all the busiest period of Madame Curie's career were she and Pierre Curie were passionately absorbed in their quest for radium, a matter to their eyes that in Paris would report: 'On the table were treatises on physics a petroleum lamp, a bunch of flowers, and that was all.'

This love of flowers . . . this hunger for growing things . . . this need to CREATE within the fertile soil, amid the miracle of birth with one's own hands . . . this is one of the greatest marvels of the Machine Age. It is more than a matter of seeds and dirt . . . it is as though our feeble feverish hands went back to God Himself for their revitalizing.

There is something in the feel of the earth itself which we need as surely as we need food, drink and rest . . . laughter, tears, work and prayer.

"THE GREEN THUMB"—all over America the Green Thumb moves, working its radiant wonder . . . fighting the creeping paralysis of materialism . . . offsetting that draining weakness which falls upon us when we become too dependent on machines.

Think of the "green thumb" service which Julian Meade does for people . . . that reviving touch of the spirit which restores wilted spirits as well as wilted roots . . . which brings blossoms to blighted souls as well as tatters to rags.

HAVE YOU "THE GREEN THUMB" IN DEALING WITH YOUR FELLOW-HUMAN? CAN YOU TAKE SOME DESPERATE WOMAN OR DISCOURAGED MAN AND, BY YOUR SYMPATHY AND FRIENDLINESS, BRING THEM BACK TO FAITH AND LIFE AGAIN?

If you can, you have found the noblest solution for your own fear or trouble or frustration.

Jim and Alf

by Hugh S. Johnson

BETHANY BEACH Del. Jim Farley went fishily to bat for Landon at the University of Virginia a week ago today. On the same day, Alf Landon was shelling him by radio from Council Bluffs, Iowa. Both were keynote speeches for the Congressional Campaign.

GEN JOHNSON

Jim sees business leaders at last understanding what the government has been trying to do for them. This summer he imagines industrial big shots are now rallying to the Third New Deal. It is not a "government of visionaries." The President is no more to be swayed by extremists of the left than by "financial giants." There is no danger to the system or any American institution.

As usual in all recent Administration speeches there is a catalogue of blessings, reforms and benefits to the mass of the people which the Third New Deal has brought.

Mr. Landon wants to know just what permanent blessings there are. He sees unemployment no less after five years of effort and 20 billions of spending. He fails to see any improvement in any of these certain conditions which make for continued prosperity, except such temporary sports as can be purchased by deficit spending, debt and taxes, leaving the underlying conditions worse when the sport is over.

He doesn't agree that what is being done is in accord with the American system and he does see danger to the American institution of total democracy in favor of one-man government.

EXCEPT for that certain taken, there is nothing new and sparkling about either of these speeches. They are important because if you study each one carefully you can avoid reading or listening to several million words of political oratory that will churn the air and preempt the press between now and November. They contain about all there is to the argument.

It is difficult to question Alf's assertion that nothing fundamental in our banking economic system has been permanently repaired. No informed person can doubt that the trend is toward one-man government.

The trouble with Alf's speech is that it is sterile of suggestions. If you are going to say: "OK on objectives, thumbs down on methods," you should propose better methods. This Alf fails to do except in the vaguest generalities.

The Brighter Side

by Damon Runyon

IT IS OUR guess out of the radio will one day come the greatest moral and spiritual force that civilization has ever known.

We do not know just when. We do not know just how. The power is there right now, undiscovered, or at least undeveloped. One day human intelligence is bound to release this power and give it full scope.

Damon Runyon

We do not think it will be in our time. Long after we begin pushing up the weeds, the radio will still be kidding around with the inanities with which it now afflicts humanity. Maybe it will not even be in the time of the tiny tots who represent a large part of the radio audience. Progress moves more slowly than a stew going home to a wifely reprimand.

But it is bound to come. It is inconceivable that any agency that directly reaches millions and millions of people throughout the world will always be devoted to the utterly fatuous. Suppose the printed word had been so devoted down through the years? Suppose our books and our newspapers had carried no thought above a laugh and a song to the multitudes? What would be the mental status of the people today?

Well, we think it would be only about two degrees higher than that of the apes. We say this with no intention of reflecting in any way upon the apes.

IT IS NOT the fault of the man who conduct the radio business that a world wide voice has become the voice of the commonplace. That is, not entirely. Among them are brilliant men who probably fully realise the potence of the amazing gift the gods have placed in their hands, and who would like to get more out of it than bad comedy and chatter that sometimes reaches an incredible low in content of intelligence and even coherence.

We believe that these men would like to employ the myriad tongues of the radio to convey to the world messages of human enlightenment and we also believe that they see as we do a radio of the future that will be a mighty force in that direction. But unfortunately they are fettered by more threads than the Lilliputians used to bind old Gulliver.

PROBABLY the stoutest fetter of the radio in this country is the commercialism that seems so essential to the operations of the business in the United States that it can dictate programs that sometimes seem a direct bid for the attention of the mentally deficient.

However, you must not overlook the tiny tots we have mentioned above. Their small fingers turning on the radio represent another strand that holds the giant prisoner. Too much of the radio apparently has to be tuned down to the understanding of the tiny tots and their wee ears must be carefully guarded by the radio people at all times.

Panay Commander Has Appendicitis

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9 (AP)—Lieut. Comdr. J. J. Hughes, captain of the U.S. gunboat Panay when it was bombed and sunk in the Yangtze River China by Japanese warplanes last December 12, was operated upon today for appendicitis at the hospital at Mare Island Navy Yard.

Winter Films For Summer

Loew theaters' summer schedule gives the lie to the old saw that Hollywood saves it better productions for winter release.

Due soon at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters, H. M. Addison, district manager of Loew's Inc. and city zone chairman announces:

H. M. Addison

Algiers," United Artists production starring the screen's newest exotic beauty, Hedy Lamarr and Charles Boyer. "Love Finds Andy Hardy," which introduces Judy Garland as a member of the delightful Hardy family. "The Crowd Roars," with Robert Taylor, Edward Arnold, Frank Morgan, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lionel Stander and Warren Hymer. "Too Hot To Handle," with Clark Gable and Myrna Loy. "The Great Waltz," starring Luise Rainer and "Sweethearts," with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

In fact the optimistic Mr. Addison sees the future with no alarm whatever. The movies aren't headed for oblivion in his mind. He points to the record of receipts established by "The Connecticut Yankee," "Lost Horizon," "Lancer Spy," "Every Day's a Holiday," "Love Under Fire," "Lord Jeff."

"And," he says, "watch what "Shopworn Angel," "The Crowd Roars," "Algiers" and the rest of the fine summer releases do."

Broadway Boosting Film Rights Prices

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

(Copyright 1938)

Motion Picture Editor International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, July 9 (INS)—The Broadway stage apparently doesn't realize there is an economy move on in the picture industry, for it is still demanding gold rush prices for plays.

The asking price for "I Married an Angel" is $250,000, which M-G-M considers about $100,000 too much.

An interesting angle is that Dick Rodgers and Larry Hart wrote this while they were still at Metro and the play belonged to the studio. When M-G-M did nothing with it, they asked if they could buy it back and produce it on Broadway. The studio agreed, retaining a "gift interest" so now that it is a hit they are in the position of having back what was originally their own property.

Louella O. Parsons

Of course it is no secret anymore that it has been profitable on Broadway and perhaps the studio shouldn't squawk over the top price since they are buying.

Last minute news is that Josef Von Sternberg, who discovered Marlene Dietrich and directed her in her best money-making pictures, has been signed to direct Darnell F. Darrieux in "Rio." Universal's fair haired daughter will sing in this next picture, almost as important news to them as it was to M-G-M when Garbo talked.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Heartbreaking is the story of Jack Dunn who is still hovering between life and death in the Hollywood Hospital. The handsome young ex-actor had one bad break after another but finally he was to be starred in a picture for Pearl Sax.

Only last week he confessed to Dunne he for something I had prayed and to say how he looked forward to having a chance of really doing something on the screen. He was stricken with a streptococci infection in the eye which they are almost certain will cause the loss of his sight even if he lives. He is in very critical condition and his mother and sister have been summoned from England to his bedside.

Superstition in Hollywood showed at Ronald Colman's recent marriage to Benita Andrews at All Saints church in Beverly Hills on June 27. Frances Farmer and Leif Erickson who recently returned from Honolulu where they went to be married, asked Ronald to be their attendant. Colman, however, was in Europe and could not accept. Instead, Leif asked Victor McLaglen to be his attendant. Victor, who is superstitious, refused because he was afraid it would bring him bad luck. Leif then asked Victor's son, Andrew McLaglen, to be his attendant. Andrew, who is not superstitious, accepted. The Frank Lloyds, Jack Warners, Darryl Zanucks, Irving Thalbergs, Gregory Ratoffs, Edmund Goulding, Samuel Goldwyn, Bernie Hyman, Joel McCrea and Frances Dee, Ida Lupino and Irene Dunne were among those who wished Alma Ethel Zanuck many years of happiness. Claudette Colbert, who is in Europe, sent a cable. Jay and Sid Howard gave a party for the bride and groom at Bel-Air Bay Club last night. "Pygmalion," which Leslie Howard produced on the stage and starred in, was the picture Alma Ethel Zanuck saw last Monday.

'Tropic Holiday' Enjoyable

"Tropic Holiday," that screen at the Metropolitan Theater this week, proved itself to be just that when it had its opening there. For a warm and tropic-loving Boston, this picture was an enjoyable diversion.

One of the better movies on the summer list, and nicely received, "Tropic Holiday" concerns itself with the trivial plot of an author who escapes to Mexico in search of a real romantic plot.

That forgiven, we find Ray Milland playing the harassed romantic author and soulful Dorothy Lamour casting those understanding glances (mmmh?) and singing in her lovely but toneless voice. So, can less than romance result?

Binnie Barnes plays the feminine menace with her usual brisk efficiency, Bob Burns carries on, and Martha Raye—well, Martha does the finest job she's turned out since her auspicious beginnings in "Rhythm On the Range."

Carrying most of her part and she has a lot to carry this time—blushly as ever, Martha turns out a bullfight scene that really had her opening audience roaring with laughter. Martha tiptoeing—that was funny. No other singer [illegible] "Tropic Holiday" is going to be well liked as summer fare.

The second "feature," a thriller, was surprisingly good. It also has a plot in its own quiet way and tells the story of a lovely girl—Shirley Ross—stranded on a reef off Devils Island on land to cover a small time crook. H. J. C.

Congo to Stay Open All Summer

The Congo dine and dance room will remain open all summer under management of Paul Chapman. Special revues will continue to be featured with Eli de Leas and his orchestra playing for both the show and dancing. Miss Chapman has selected floor club stars of the season and will appear throughout the summer. The present policy of never a cover charge will remain the same.

New Show Nightly At Orts Grille

An entire new floor revue is presented nightly at Ort's Grille, Essex street. The show introduces many new club stars to Boston dine and dance goers. Dancing prevails until the early hours of morning.

History Mystery At So. Station

Latest in South Station's "Historical Mysteries" series is "The Man in the Iron Mask," story of the masked man imprisoned by Louis XIV of France in 1661 and whose identity has never been solved. Most popular theory is that he was the king's twin brother. Some historians say he was a political rival of the king and others that he was an Italian nobleman who betrayed the king over a love affair.

Dream Hour to Aid of Owner | Wins Shipping Money Home

By JACK CONWAY

DREAM HOUR, rated a 100 to 1 shot in anybody's book, and A. Covington were 3000 miles from California. Dream Hour was Covington's lone horse, and one cannot expect to live too easily when obliged to rely upon the running ability of a 100 to 1 nag.

Mr. Boston

Covington figured it out that with $185 cash he could land in Los Angeles and still have enough cash for a taxi fare to his home. So Dream Hour was placed on the auction block with a $185 tag on him.

There were other horsemen at Agawam who were also planning ways and means to get home, and a 100 to 1 shot didn't cause any of them to decide to give up $185. So there was only one thing left for Covington to do. He had to run Dream Hour in an $800 race. If by any chance Dream Hour won, Covington would get $600 for his end of the purse, and that would be sufficient to take horse and owner to California in grand style.

Dream Hour was placed in the field with three or four other horses which brought the odds on him down to 7 to 1. Running alone he would have easily been a 100 to 1 shot. Maybe higher.

Dream Hour probably wanted to get back to California, too, as he ran a great race and won.

A. Covington was hanging on the rail when the number of his horse went up on the board. The payoff price didn't interest him as he only wagered $2 on Dream Hour. He knew, however, that he would get a purse of $600 and that would be more than enough for getaway money.

In fact when Covington was paid off at the office of General Manager Eddie Brennan he staked two pals so they also could ship home.

Sure, Menow and War Minstrel are great horses, but as far as A. Covington is concerned Dream Hour will always be tops in his book.

Suffolk and Agawam Close Today

SUFFOLK DOWNS and Agawam will both close today, and there will not be any more horse racing, other than at country fairs, in Massachusetts this year.

The voters will pass upon horse racing before it is permitted in Massachusetts again.

Charles F. Adams, chairman of the board at Suffolk, believes that horse racing will win in Suffolk County. The vote was 5 to 1 in favor of racing when last considered by the voters, and it is expected that the sport will again receive the approval of the voters.

Dan Gurnett of Agawam told me he believes Hampden County will also approve horse racing. The vote was 3 to 1 for racing in this county, and the success of the present meeting at Agawam has done much to help the turf sport. The steeplechase races attracted a fine type of people to Agawam. These races were operated at a loss, but did much to increase interest in the other events on the card.

Ty Shea Moves to Rockingham

TY SHEA, who has done such an excellent job as racing secretary at Agawam, moves to Rockingham tonight where he will assist Racing Secretary John Turner. Shea had plenty of good horses at Agawam, and didn't have any difficulty filling his races. He should be of much assistance to Turner.

Shea and Turner both entered racing from the newspaper business in Baltimore. The combination of Turner and Shea should give Rockingham some fine racing programs.

The Rockingham meeting will last for only three weeks, and this condition should be helpful. I have always felt that long race meetings are unsatisfactory. It is difficult to get suitable horses for a long meeting, while everybody gets on everybody else's nerves around a race track after 30 days of competition.

I do not believe Suffolk Downs will attempt a long meeting next year. Its board of directors will probably decide to stage two meetings.

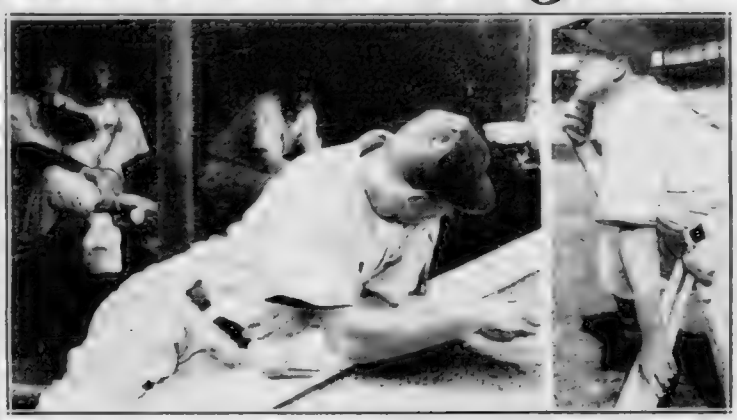
Christmas Basket Fund Race Success

THE CHRISTMAS Basket Fund race at Agawam yesterday was a success.

Dan Gurnett made a special trip from Boston so that he would be on hand for the running of this annual feature.

The race was witnessed by 8000 persons which was an exceptionally large Friday gathering. The Christmas Basket Fund was enriched by $745 by the Agawam race.

Powell Lauds Red Sox Fight



BASHFUL MR. POWELL DUCKS CAMERAS -- POWELL'S VERSUS -- JOE CRONIN

By MURRAY KRAMER

Those Yankees laugh at our Red Sox no longer!

In fact, even Jake "Storm Center" Powell, whose recent fist fight with Joe Cronin was one of the choicest baseball morsels of the year, openly declares the Sox a flag threat.

"Most fans believe Cleveland is the team we have to beat," said Powell today, "but as far as our gang is concerned we have every bit as much respect for those Red Sox.

"Any time a club hustles there is trouble ahead for their opponents. The fact that the Yankees were never licked until the last man was out is what made, and still makes, them a great club.

'And those Red Sox are really hustling this year.

"There is no doubt that their pitching could be better. But if Jack Wilson regains his top form, the Sox can hold up on that end.

"Their only other trouble is their strong array of right handed stickers which definitely handicaps them on the road.

"These are disadvantages, but once again I claim that when a club is hustling it forces a lot of breaks, which often evens up apparent weaknesses."

Incidentally this may be over-drawn, but Powell talks tops with those who know him, and he was [illegible] Joe Cronin in a [illegible] more difficult from the [illegible] that Powell [illegible] have.

Jack Wilson

According to Jake the trouble [illegible] when Powell [illegible] on May 7 started in the [illegible] when Grove threw a beanball which just missed [illegible]. Then in the second game Mc[illegible]skin threw one and then a second Powell then went on to say:

"I wasn't getting any help from the umpires, and I did not intend to keep ducking all day. When it happened a third time, I went out to the mound with no intention of fighting. I just wanted to protect myself and to warn McAlpin to cut it out.

"Cronin, evidently, thought I wanted to fight and came in swinging, which left nothing for me to do but protect myself.

"The story that Cronin was ganged under the stands is absolutely false. I offered to continue the fight if he wanted to but we were separated and nothing happened.

"And, strange as it may seem, I don't blame Cronin. He simply misunderstood my motives and was protecting his ball players. I hold absolutely nothing against him and, knowing Joe as I do, I feel he has also forgotten the incident."

That's Powell's story — and the more you get to know Jake the more plausible his story seems.

7	Peggy Glenn	56	J. Hutchinson	8-1
8	Joe Clark	66	E. Stephenson	8-1

WHITE CROW advances after a fine victory, and from this best should break and win all the way. BOB-O-LINK drops back and should head the rest. TREATY TRAFFIC is entitled to some consideration.

SECOND RACE—FUTURITY
Second Half Daily Double
SPEEDY TRAFFIC, EL-MAR, MENTAL TEST

1	Speedy Traffic	64	Frank Lane 3-1
2	El Mar	58	Cedar Pt. Ken. 4-1
3	Mental Test	61	O. Dahlberg 5-1

7	Do It Now	58	G. H. Rogers 8-1
8	Judge's Gal	48	Homer Rageot 8-1
	Frank Lane's dogs all break fast. Mar the rail, brave I take SPEEDY TRAFFIC to every here, with EL MAR the one to beat. MENTAL TEST drops way down and should be in the money.

THIRD RACE—5-16 MILE
WHITE TEMPEST, CRIMSON TRAFFIC, TAVERN'S HOSTESS

1	White Tempest	67	O. Dahlberg 3-1
2	Crimson Traffic	66	F. L. Brooks 6-1

6	Prairie Moon	67	W. R. Bernard 8-1
7	Space	66	J. J. Ayotte 8-1
8	Iarian Breeze	60	Fred Palermo 8-1

WHITE TEMPEST needs only the break to win this number, for in addition to speed it has staying power. CRIMSON TRAFFIC should force the issue, with TAVERN'S HOSTESS in the show here.

FOURTH RACE—FUTURITY
MIKE, CLASS, SNOW HORN, ROUNDABOUT

1	Mac Times	51	W. R. Hall 3-1
2	Snow Horn	58	F. L. Brooks 4-1

6	Jackie Bell	55	A. J. Smart 6-1
7	Pepper Bell	62	Jim Beard 8-1
8	Transporter	64	W. F. Bryant 8-1

MIKE, CLASS, which won his last, needs but figures to repeat. SNOW HORN, a fast breaker, will be dangerous if he rounds the first curve without a jam. ROUNDABOUT could upset.

FIFTH RACE—5-16 MILE
IRVIN ANDREW, ODESSA GIRL, INEZ

1	Irvin Andrew	61	M. T. Dubois 3-1
2	Odessa Girl	55	J. L. Ayotte 6-1

7	Fancy Bird	54	F. L. Brooks 8-1
8	Daffy Doll	62	F. R. Watts 8-1

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY
BLUE WAY, HAWKE'S CHOICE, RITZY ANDREW

1	Fleet Way	58	M. J. Lucas 3-1
2	Hawke's Choice	61	E. Stephenson 6-1

6	Jim Mike	66	J. Hutchinson 6-1
7	Dreamin Fire	66	F. R. Watts 8-1
8	Upstart	56	Paul Keene 8-1

FLEET WAY has proved the most consistent dog at this track, winning his last three, and should repeat. HAWKE'S CHOICE proved brilliantly last out and should force the issue here. RITZY ANDREW for what is left.

SEVENTH RACE—FUTURITY
SAM CLIPPER, FLIGHT LEADER, JACK AND RAN

1	Sam Clipper	70	O. & R. Kennel 3-1
2	Flight Leader	64	H. E. Webhouf 6-1
3	Jack And Ran	64	Forbe Spencer 6-1
4	Jennings	66	Dave Kennel 8-1

6	Standard Cub	57	J. J. Ayotte 6-1
7	Stormy Breeze	70	G. Lippold, Jr. 8-1
8	Good Action	66	M. C. Sparks 8-1

Any mixup at the start should result in SAM CLIPPER reaching the first turn in the lead and it will be the lucky there's not much to it. FLIGHT LEADER can avoid trouble and on the rail furnish the opposition, with JACK AND RAN breaking into the show hole.

EIGHTH RACE—FUTURITY
UNDERSTUDY, CASTALIA CARESS, RURAL CRIER

1	Understudy	66	O. Dahlberg 3-1
2	Castalia Caress	65	C. A. Rhoden 5-1
3	Rural Crier	70	M. C. Sparks 6-1
4	Pass Down	67	F. L. Brooks 8-1

6	Ella Paine	59	O. R. Webhouf 6-1
7	Rural Lady	67	Art Wilson 8-1
8	Silver Lore	55	G. Lippold, Jr. 8-1

UNDERSTUDY likes the rail and with the nose bet his turn in the draw, should get home on top tonight. CASTALIA CARESS breaks fast enough to make it close. RURAL CRIER, if it avoids a jam, should be in the money.

NINTH RACE—5-16 MILE
MIRACULOUS, COMRADE CARESS, STAGE DIVE

1	Miraculous	53	M. C. Sparks 3-1
2	Comrade Caress	66	C. A. Rhoden 6-1
3	Stage Dive	54	G. Lippold, Jr. 6-1
4	Muddler	71	E. Stephenson 5-1

6	Puddles	60	Cedar Pt. Ken. 6-1
7	Bessie's Dream	55	Pat Conway 8-1
8	Mrs. Simpson	51	J. J. Ayotte 8-1

MIRACULOUS, which broke last, has had rail tonight and should score from that position, though COMRADE CARESS can make it close. STAGE DIVE for the rest.

TENTH RACE—5-16 MILE
BUGGER, CHICK, TED TONE

1	Mr. Bugger	66	J. L. Ayotte 3-1
2	Chick	57	Forbe Spencer 5-1
3	Ted Tone	61	Paul Keene 5-1
4	Anderson's Hope	59	O. & R. Kennel 6-1
5	Jovial Jokes	67	F. R. Watts 8-1
6	Real Park	66	E. Stephenson 8-1
7	Joel Childs	57	W. J. Bryant 8-1
8	Rock Trawler	68	Pat Conway 8-1

MR. BUGGER started handily last out and, though stepping up slightly, figures best here. CHICK has the rail and can make it close with TED TONE making to a piece of the change.

Foxx Sings Praise Of Krakauskas

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP)—Ask the average baseball fan to name the lefthander with the most stuff in the major leagues and he'll probably call out anybody but—J. V. L. Krapauskas.

Evidence is slowly mounting, however, that this raw rookie of the Washington Senators has got more than a strange sounding name.

Latest to pitch adjectives Krakky's way is Jimmy Foxx the Red Sox's first sacker and a fellow who's looked at a lot of pitching.

Asked about Johnny Vander Meer after the All-Star game, Jimmy wound up and said:

"Tell you what, there's a lefty down in Washington who's got him beaten in every way except one. And that's control. That kid is faster and he's got a better curve, too."

FAST KID

More stuff than the man who hurled two consecutive no-hit games?

"Sure," said Jimmy, "he's one of the fastest fellows who ever threw a ball."

That isn't the opinion of only one authority either. There's Bill McGowan, the American League umpire who's been gazing at balls and strikes for years.

"He's terribly fast," said Bill, "I think he may be faster than Lefty Grove was in his prime, and brother, that's fast."

Yet, possessed of speed and curves, Krakauskas has been a failure with the Senators this year. Control has been the trouble.

Krakauskas is a tow-headed, barrel-chested 21-pounder from Hamilton, Ontario. He was with Hamilton last year, where he struck out 184 would-be hitters.

HARRIS TREMBLES

With the Senators this year he's won but a single game while losing two and is an flighty Manager Bucky Harris trembles when he gets him.

Krakky has hurled 16 innings and has walked 24 batters but has whiffed 15. That's walking one of two an inning and striking out one in three.

"If he either walks them or fans them," said Bucky, "but some day that boy's going to get control and he'll be one of the greatest lefties in the business."

2 Yale Stars On All-Team

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—Two Yale stars were added today to the Eastern all-star football squad which will play the New York pro Giants Sept. 7 for the benefit of the New York Herald Tribune fresh air fund.

They are Dave Colwell of Leonard, Colo., the regular fullback for the past three years noted for his ability as a punter, booter and defensive back and Al Hessberg, speedy "crimson" runner from Albany, N. Y. who wound up a season-end scoring contest by tallying the touchdown that gave Yale a tie with Harvard.

Her Ladyship Rules Roost

CLEVELAND, July 9 (AP)—Her Ladyship, recently purchased for $1000 by the St. Charles (Ill.) sportsman E. J. Baker was the winner today of today's $1,000 Theater parking stake feature of the evening speed carnival at Northern Ranches.

Eleven other speedsters were entered in the event on the Cleveland-Akron speedway, but Her Ladyship was the only three-year-old to go the route of eight furlongs.

Bravo the Cedarhurst, N. Y. stallion, cleaned off two races on the card, one of 5-16 of a mile on Friday for the 4th consecutive win, the $1,000 Inaugural for Owner Joseph Lauria.

A son of Vitamine, the only three-year-old hotter to win a $25,000 classic in aged company, Bravo led every inch of the way in the first mile under guidance of Harry Wray and won by a length and finished three-quarters of a length ahead in the second mile.

Binder, Hanover, the Cleveland entry with Bob Plaxico up, in each heat was second to the son of the horse which made a $25,000 victory voyage in 1929 at Hartford, Conn.

Stratton Leads Wright

Woodland Star In 1 Up Edge After 9 Holes

By BILL GRIMES

MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA, July 9—Overcoming a two-hole deficit by two birdies, Emory P. Stratton, Woodlawn, was 1 up on Fred J. Wright, Jr., Trapelo, at the endof the first nine holes i the finals of the 34th state amateur championship today at the Essex County Club.

The cards:

Stratton, out	5	4	6	4	4	3	3	5	4—38
Wright, out	4	4	6	3	5	4	3	5	5—39

MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA—Fred J. Wright, Jr., Trapelo, six-time winner of the title and Emory P. Stratton, Woodland, the only veterans with a threat to weather the qualifying round, turned back the youth movement by wading through their respective halves to reach the finals of the 34th Massachusetts amateur championship.

Today, here at the Essex County Club, Wright and Stratton are playing 36 holes to decide which will be the successor to Dave Whiteside, who relinquished his crown when he failed to qualify.

Of course, there's always a first time, but Wright has never lost in the finals of a state championship.

Fred Wright

He made the grade for the first time at The Country Club in 1920 when he beat the late Parker Schofield for the title.

Then he came back in '26 and took Frank Newton, a The Country Club, in the finals.

The following year Billy Whitcomb, an unknown from Worcester, stopped Wright in the semifinals at Charles River. Then "the master" really began to bear down.

He beat Joe Norton, Jr., here ten years ago, took Stratton over the jumps at Belmont the ensuing year, and the next year at Salem he defeated Bill Blaney.

After he had won the title for the fourth consecutive time at Winchester, where he stopped Eddie Lowery, he allowed the title to go by default in 1932.

Making Xmas Merry In July

Gurnett Brennan Conway Wilson Shea

Bally Bay Takes Basket Fund Race

American Gets Check for $745

By JACK CONWAY

AGAWAM, July 9—A crowd of 8000 persons saw H. Kerr's Bally Bay win the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund race here in a thrilling finish.

Jockey N. DiVito gave Bally Bay a fine ride. The winner paid $7.20.

The association's share of the mutuel handle, after deduction of the pure money, will be used to purchase food for the poor and unfortunate. This amounted to $745.

The nine race program furnished the crowd with plenty of thrills and saw the mutuel handle soar to new heights. The average daily mutuel handle here has been $150,000.

The meeting, which closes today, will show a profit of $100,000.

The track won many friends when Pretty Pal, which ran away while at the post for the fifth race, was scratched by order of the stewards. Money wagered on Pretty Pal was refunded.

It was the first time in the history of Massachusetts racing that such action has been taken.

It was possible in view of a rule in the book of the Massachusetts Racing Commission permitting any action necessary to give justice to the betting public.

In most states a horse is a starter when he leaves the paddock and cannot be scratched under any condition.

3 Sox Hurlers On Shelf

getting the call for the "Bombers."

But Cronin may yet put Jim Bagby back in there, despite the fact that Junior hurled 1 1-3 innings of the first game.

With victory of such paramount importance and with Bagby showing to far better advantage over the year, it will be no surprise if the youngster picks up today where he left off in the Friday ninth inning.

In any event Bob Grove gets tomorrow's call, when Fenway is scheduled to be filled to capacity, and Charlie Ruffing, who failed to see All-Star service will be ready for the visitors.

While the Red Sox gained a full game on the Yankees by virtue of the opening win, they are still two and one half behind the Indians who came from behind to pull out an 8 to 7, 10-inning decision over the St. Louis Browns.

Brae Burn Gets State Amateur

By BILL GRIMES

Although Manager Joe Cronin's blood pressure must have hit the 750 mark while his charges were turning back the Yankees 9 to 8, the Red Sox closed up the gap between them and the world champions to the extent of one full game . . . The crippled Bees lost a tough one to the Giants . . . The Massachusetts amateur championship will be held at Brae Burn next year . . . Sam Felton and Ted Tewksbury are training for the Essex County Club four ball invitation . . . There's a proviso in the Felton-Tewksbury agreement that Ted must pass muster as to the calibre of his game before he'll be eligible to pair with the former Harvard gridiron and diamond star . . .

Emory Stratton

Joan Wright, daughter of Fred J., Jr., broke her ankle jumping off a spring board at Rockport . . She is well on the road to recovery, and the cast will be removed within ten days . . . The John Corcoran family, John, Danny and Nancy, have been vacationing at Magnolia since the start of the state championship . . . Davie Snedden, one of the real old time golf addicts, chased the Wright-Hoffman match.

Emory Stratton connected with one of the longest drives of the entire tournament off the 16th tee against Leo Martin . . . He played a sand wedge for his second shot . . . And then he holed a 15 footer for a birdie . . . Since he defaulted his title in 1932, Freddie Wright has been anxious to come through in one more state champion in order to break the tie with Francis Ouimet . . . They both have won the championship six times . . . Jack Wilson is beginning to worry over his lack of control . . . There's something wrong with the Oregon boy's salary whip when he passes four in a row.

Joey Hoffman, who was beaten by Freddie Wright in the semifinals at Essex, was obliged to quit golf last season because of asthma . . . He had his tonsils removed last winter and, although he tires noticeably, he is much improved . . .

200 Straight!

That's Casey's Goal in Shikat Match

Steve (Crusher) Casey, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, will be after his 200th consecutive American triumph when he defends his title against Richard Shikat, of Germany, at Fenway Park, on Tuesday night, July 19.

The powerful Irishman has been the most active campaigner in the sport since he came to America in October, 1936.

Dick Shikat

His match in Salisbury Beach tonight will be his 199th American contest, and it will be his final start before his important struggle with Shikat.

That's an average of nearly two matches a week in the nearly two years he has been in this country.

Besides, Casey has engaged in more than 300 European professional and amateur combats. He had never lost a fall until his title contest with Louis Thesz, brilliant young St. Louisan, who gained the first fall in their spectacular battle.

Later, Casey lost a fall to Yvon Robert, a former titleholder. No wrestler, professional or amateur, has beaten the Irishman.

But in Shikat, Casey will meet probably the cagiest and toughest performer he has gone against. It was Shikat who broke Dan O'Mahony's winning spree in New York.

He received little credit for that triumph, but recently he came to Boston and scored a clean-cut victory over Danno.

O'Mahony, who has opposed both Casey and Shikat, declares he favors his countryman by a very slight margin, because of his superior strength, but declares Shikat is the toughest foe Casey has been called upon to meet.

Fette Opposes Hubbell Today

NEW YORK, July 9—King Carl Hubbell for the Giants and Lucky Lou Fette for the Bees will be the pitchers in the second game of the series between these clubs at the Polo Grounds today.

With Hubbell going strong again after passing his 200th win mark, the Giants are expected to add another victory to their string which has given them a comfortable lead in the National League race.

Only the Pirates are near enough to worry Bill Terry, and Terry will continue to do little worrying so long as the Giants keep winning.

Harry Gumbert pitched a nice 4-hit victory for the Giants in the series opener with the Bees. Max West's homer in the first with one aboard got Gumbert off badly, but he did a rapid about-face.

Homers by Lou Chiozza and Alex Kampouris, the latter with one aboard, made up for West's wallop.

Averill's Diadem In Danger

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—The American League batting field began closing in on Earl Averill of the Indians this week, while Ernie Lombardi of the Reds had an easier time than ever in pacing the National League hit parade.

Averill, riding along on a 24-point margin in the junior circuit race a week ago, went into a tail-spin during the last seven-day span and saw his average fall to .371 and his lead cut to 18 points. At the same time Cecil Travis, Washington shortstop, boosted his mark two points to .353 and took over second place.

In the National League, Lombardi connected for five hits in 13 batting chances and boosted his average two points to .361. His Cincinnati teammate, Ival Goodman, went on a hitting splurge and raised his average 13 points to .341 for second place.

Both second-place holders of a week ago fell off, Ducky Medwick of the Cardinals dropping to third in the National League and Hal Trosky of the Indians nose-diving to fourth in the American League.

Notable among the newcomers in the top 10 were Joe DiMaggio, Yankee wallop, who climbed from 18th to eighth with a 21-point boost to .326, and Wally Berger, ex-Giant, now with Cincinnati, who went into seventh place in the senior circuit with .328.

Lewis, Guernsey In College Final

HAVERFORD, Pa., July 9 (INS)—Unseeded Morod Lewis, of Kenyon College (Ohio), and Frank Guernsey, Jr., of Rice Institute (Texas), meet today in the final round of the 53rd intercollegiate tennis tournament at Merion Cricket Club.

In the semifinals, the stocky Guernsey outlasted Robert Harman, University of California, Berkeley, conqueror of first-seeded Bobby Hunt, in a Marathon five-set struggle, 3—6, 2—6, 6—3, 6—2, 8—6.

Lewis, dark horse of the tournament, upset seventh-ranked Lewis Wetherell, National parks champion from the University of Southern California, 3—6, 6—4, 10—8, 7—5.

Freddie Apostoli Beats Battle With Appendectomy

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—The coaching firm of Kelly and Kelly (Mike and George) is helping Casey Stengel keep those Boston Bees in stinging distance of the first division.

Suspended fir five years by the Illinois Athletic Commission, Jack Kearns said: "They would pick on me . . . Usually I'm guilty, but this time I ain't." . . . Mebbe it was another guy named Joe.

MUNGO GIVES AWAY SHOES

Ouch Dept: Henry Holt, pitcher for the Charleston club of the South Carolina Semi-Pro League, got an old pair of Van Mungo's shoes off Mungo's dad . . . Then he went out there and won the opening game of the season from Pageland—which just happens to be Mungo's home town! . . . And here's a couple of extra ouches for Van's Pop . . . Kansas folks say "he hum" when they start talking about the reported Glenn Cunningham-Archie San Romani feud . . . Papers in other National League cities are carrying special features on Bill McKechnie, manager of those surprising Cincinnati Reds.

The white hope hunt is on again . . . Jimy Bronson, one of the smartest of the New York fight managers, stole a march on his colleagues by slipping out to Columbus, O., and signing up Floyd Gibbons, a heavyweight, who may be heard from later.

Thanks to President George M. Trautman for an invitation to the American Association's fifth annual all-star game, to be played at Indianapolis, June 14.

Fred Apostoli (teh best middleweight in the world in this book) is ready to start training at Lake Tahoe Cal., after a battle with appendicitis . . . Add newspapermen who made good: Ed Cochrane, sports editor of the Chicago Evening American, who has brought a 400-acre ranch in Missouri . . . How about a mess of sausage, Ed?

They'll all deny this right quick, but it comes pretty straight . . . Joe Louis (who probably will not fight Max Baer—or anyone else this year) may never fight again.

Joe is pretty well fed up with it . . . he's got plenty of dough and he doesn't like to train . . . Messrs. Mike Jacobs, et al, may persuade him to go in again, but if they leave it to the Bomber, he'll hang up those mittens and go out to see the Tigers (looking forward, of course, to plenty of fried chicken afterwards.)

HERE'S HOPING

Football material at Michigan State must be pretty good, at that . . . Coach Charlie Bachman is building a new home at East Lansing . . .

Rogers Hornsby speaks with his mind about interfering front office managers in this week's Colliers . . . George Barton, sports editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, is handing out cigars and buying drinks like nobody's business . . . Reason: George, Jr. (who gives you those snappy musical programs from station KMOX, St. Louis, is the proud daddy of bouncing baby boy . . .

Let's all hope the kid turns out to be a newspaper man, but they'll have a fine time making a better sports editor out of him than his grandpop is.

Big Money Ahead For British Champ

SANDWICH, Eng., July 9 (AP)—Stolid Reggie Whitcombe, at 40 the youngest of a trio of famous golfing brothers and the first to win the coveted British open title, looks upon the big increase in his annual income as something at least as important as the prestige he won yesterday.

After battling a 50-mile wind that all but brew the players off the course and sent scores kiting up into the 90's, and after waiting while the late finishers, including the departing champion, Henry Cotton, finished their rounds, Reggie's comment when he learned of his victory was:

"All we cared about was that a Whitcombe won. We didn't mind which."

But the extra money a champion can earn probably means a lot to Reggie, who often has been near but never before on the top. Cotton estimated his 1937 victory over Reggie was worth $25,000. When Walter Hagen beat Reggie's eldest brother, Ernest, by one stroke back in 1924, he said the title was worth $50,000 annually.

POLKER FACE

The Whitcombe temperament, much the same in 48-year-old Ernest and 42-year-old Charles, played as big a part as Reggie's skill and his powerful build in battling the gale. He just kept on playing his game and shot 75-78 on the last two rounds to turn a two-stroke deficit into a two-stroke victory. He finished with 295 for the 72 holes against 297 for Jim Adams and 298 for Cotton.

Reggie's taned face and tight-lipped mouth don't tell you whether he is winning or losing. His keen blue eyes above a long nose and jutting jaw don't talk either—they're always shaded by a peaked cap.

Gilded Knight Breaks Record

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—A 15-year-old track record was broken at Empire City when Gilded Knight, owned and bred by Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable, stepped five furlongs in 59 2-5 seconds.

The time clipped one-fifth of a second from the old mark established by Lord Baltimore 2nd in 1923.

The bay two-year-old son of Sir Gallahad 3rd, a close second in his first start earlier in the meeting, scored by a scant neck over George D. Widener's Dr. Whinny to pay 1 to 2.

Saints Face Holy Name Tomorrow

Climaxing a march of six wins and a tie in their last seven games, the St. Augustines of South Boston regained the top place in the west division of the Boston Park League last night by walloping the Mass. Knitting club, 13-9, while the Roslindale Town club, continuing its annual mid-season letdown, fell before Ralph Yates and the Madden club, 9-2.

Leading the parade for the last five weeks and setting up an amazing record of going unbeaten in 19 games, the Healy Field boys haven't reached the win column since June 24, when they were stopped by the Brighton Civics.

KNITTERS LEAD

The surprising Agnews, with Hickman allowing St. Ambrose only three hits last night, are in third place, with Hyde Park just a step ahead of the fast-coming Maddens. The last named club, which aims to finish in the money, shows 10 victories for the year, as against double that number of defeats. Young Ralph Yates, unsung hurler for the Marcella street gang, has won half his team's games.

On the other side of the picture, the sensational Holy Name club, bolstered by the addition of Curt Fullerton, are blazing along in second place, a mere five points behind the pace-setting Mass. Knitting bunch. Dick Casey's club is just a step behind in third place, with the Civics holding the all-important fourth spot. The McDonoughs must regather in the next three weeks if they hope to make the playoff bracket. The Wilsons, after a two weeks' spurt, stopped abruptly, but may get going again just in time to be a contender.

Fighting Fox Back to Wars

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—Fighting Fox, Kentucky Derby and Preakness disappointment from William Woodward's Belair stud, returns to competition today with Maxwell Howard's Stagehand, Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Stormscud and four other three-year-olds as his rivals in the $10,000 Empire City Handicap.

The Fox, a brilliant early season performer, has not run since his dismal showing in the Preakness. He came down with a cough a few days after that event.

Since returning to training, however, he has shown indications of returning to the form he displayed in winning the Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

He will be coupled in the betting with Stormscud as the trainer James Fitzsimmons entry and, largely because of that reason, the combination probably will be the public's choice.

Stormscud, also lightly campaigned, won the Kent Handicap at Delaware Park last Saturday, whipping The Chief, stablemate of Stagehand, and B. F. Whitaker's Mythical King, also in the Empire race of a mile and an eighth.

Stagehand, top weight with 124 pounds, has not turned in a winning race since beating Seabiscuit a nose in the Santa Anita Handicap last March but Earl Sande has him in top form. He was second to The Chief in the Brooklyn Handicap, his best recent effort.

Wilson Yields To Squawker

By DAVE WILSON

SELECTIONS FOR FAST TRACK

BEST BET—SQUAWKER, 4th

Disregard Squawker's recent dull effort. The Phil Bieber owned and trained mare is much better than that race indicates. She does not like an off track but on a fast strip looms as the safest wagering hazard of today's eight-race Suffolk card.

FIRST RACE

Golden Fate, Brain Trust, Richstrike

GOLDEN FATE has returned to his best form, as a recent second to Mugging attests. He will have only BRAIN TRUST to contend with. The latter has been scratched several times waiting for this more favorable spot.

SECOND RACE

Arrow Song, Cona Dara, Sunabell

ARROW SONG has been racing close up and should score her first victory in this race. CONA DARA showed a burst of early speed in her last start and may be hard to catch. SUNABELL rates a money chance.

THIRD RACE

Akehurst, Country Lass, Michigan Lady

AKEHURST needs only a snug ride from Freddy Schein to give the Medway Stable another purse. COUNTRY LASS, on best effort, will furnish strong contention.

FOURTH RACE

Squawker, Strange Times, Hastinola

STRANGE TIMES and HASTINOLA figure to give SQUAWKER her main competition.

FIFTH RACE

Ottoman, Bellum, Aureate

A winner of her last three races, OTTOMAN should earn another set of brackets over strong contention. BELLUM showed a fine conditioner the last time out and should improve off that effort.

SIXTH RACE

Ebony Blue, Charlotte Girl, Heather Time

EBONY BLUE, the nice daughter of Flying Ebony, may be the upset winner in the Mayflower Stakes. Favored by an outside post position where she will be able to escape interference in the run to the first turn, EBONY BLUE needs only capable handling from Maurice Berger to turn back the highly favored CHARLOTTE GIRL. The latter, heavily weighted, is still the one to beat. HEATHERTIME is the best of the others.

SEVENTH RACE

Herondas, Golden Spur, Viajero

HERONDAS will like this distance. Golden Spur will be hard to beat. VIAJERO may hang on long enough to grab a part of the spoils.

EIGHTH RACE

Gallant Gay, Tiempo, Dick Merrill

The get-away special of the 1938 Suffolk season will probably be GALLANT GAY. TIEMPO has been racing in consistent manner and will be the one to beat. DICK MERRILL, third in last outing, is a possibility.

Dick Volpe In Dilboy Ring Show

Dick Volpe, 118-pound amateur boxing champion, has entered the Dilboy Post, V. F. W., simon-pure ring show under the floodlights next Wednesday night at Dilboy Field in Somerville.

Director Fred Russo is being flooded with entries for the second of a series of outdoor amateur boxing shows as a result of the success of the first venture under the stars when close to 3000 fans turned out to see more than 25 stirring fights.

It was the first outdoor amateur boxing venture in this section since 1933 and proved a huge hit.

Along with Volpe in the 118's, Russo has received the entries of Jim Prendible in the heavies, Joe Gonzales in the 147's, and George Pettee of Medford in the 135's.

Boxing will be in five classes—118, 135, 147, 160 and heavyweights.

Entries close with Russo at the Dilboy Post, V. F. W., 8 Curtis street, Somerville.

Holders of show tickets on Martin Barton received $8.60 and those on Merry Pete received $3.80.

Schmeling Sad as Nazi Berlin Gives No Cheers

BERLIN, July 9 (AP) — Max Schmeling's return home in defeat caused hardly a ripple of excitement today as the Bremerhaven boat-train reached Berlin for a cheerless reception.

Two dozen persons, including friends, cameramen and newspapermen, were on hand, but there were no cheers and no official welcome for the German heavyweight who lost to Joe Louis.

"I'll go to the hospital tomorrow to complete my cure," said Schmeling of the injuries he sustained in the title fight. "Beyond that I have nothing to say at present."

To friends who expected him to come home on a stretcher the ex-champion said:

"That would never have done. Naturally I insisted on walking off the boat and the train."

As he descended the steps from the elevator platform Schmeling seized at a bannister with a somewhat uncertain hand and clung to it as he descended.

Then he drove away with Anny Ondra, his movie actress wife, who met him at Bremerhaven.

The accident occurred in Ocean avenue, Marblehead Neck, near the Lampson summer home.

Harding was charged with driving so as to endanger and later released on $200 bail by Clerk of Courts Leo A. Tracy. Police said an additional charge will probably be placed against the student when he appears in court next Monday.
